Imperatori Domitiano Caesari Augusto Germanicu Dacico Valerius Martialis $S$.

Omnes quidem libelli mei, domine, quibus tu famam, id est vitam, dedisti, tibi supplicant; et, puto propter hoc legentur. hic tamen, qui operis nostri octavus inscribitur, occasione pietatis frequentius fruitur; minus itaque ingenio laborandum fuit, in cuius locum materia successerat: quam quidem subinde aliqua iocorum mixtura variare temptavimus, ne caelesti verecundiae tuae laudes suas, quae facilius te fatigare possint quam nos satiare, omnis versus ingereret. quamvis autem epigrammata a severissimis quoque et summae fortunae viris ita scripta sint ut mimicam verborum licentiam adfectasse videantur, ego tamen illis non permisi tam lascive loqui quam solent. cum pars libri et maior et melior ad maiestatem sacri nominis tui alligata sit, meminerit non nisi religiosa purificatione lustratos accedere ad templa debere. quod

BOOK VIIl

To the Emperor Domitianus, Caesar, Augustus, Conqueror of Germany and Dacia, Valerius Martialis sends Greeting ${ }^{1}$

Of a truth all my little books, Sire, to which you have given fame, that is, life, are your suppliants, and I think will, for this reason, be read. This one, however, which is marked the eighth of my works, enjoys more frequently the opportunity of showing loyalty. Accordingly I had less occasion for the labour of invention, for which the subject-matter formed a substitute; that, however, I have here and there attempted to diversify by some intermixture of pleasantry, so that every verse should not heap upon your divine modesty its meed of praise which would more easily weary you than satiate me. And although epigrams have been written in such a style, even by men the most austere and of the highest position, as apparently to have aimed at the verbal licence of mimes, yet I have not allowed these to speak with their usual playfulness. As part of my book-and that the greater and better-is attached to the Majesty of your sacred name, it should remember that it is unfitting to approach the temple save cleansed by religious purification. ${ }^{2}$ That readers ut custoditurum me lecturi sciant, in ipso libelli huius limine profiteri brevissimo placuit epigrammate.

I

Laurigeros domini, liber, intrature penates disce verecundo sanctius ore loqui. nuda recede Venus; non est tuus iste libellus: tu mihi, tu Pallas Caesariana, veni.

Fastorum genitor parensque Ianus victorem modo cum videret Histri, tot vultus sibi non satis putavit optavitque oculos habere plures, et lingua pariter locutus omni terrarum domino deoque rerum promisit Pyliam quater senectam. addas, Iane pater, tuam rogamus.

"Quinque satis fuerant: nam sex septemve libelli est nimium : quid adhuc ludere, Musa, iuvat? sit pudor et finis: iam plus nihil addere nobis fama potest : teritur noster ubique liber ; et cum rupta situ Messallae saxa iacebunt altaque cum Licini marmora pulvis erunt, may know I shall regard this obligation, I have determined to make my profession on the very threshold of this little book by a very brief epigram.

I

Thou, my book, who art purposed to enter my Master's laurel-wreathed ${ }^{1}$ abode, learn to speak more reverently in modest speech. Undraped Venus, stand back: this little book is not thine; do thou come to me, thon, Pallas, patron of Caesar.

II

When Janus, begetter and parent of our annals, ${ }^{2}$ of late saw Hister's conqueror, he deemed his many faces were not enough for him, and wished to possess more eyes; and, speaking alike with every tongue, he promised the Lord of Earth and God of the Universe a Pylian old age ${ }^{3}$ four times over. Add, Father Janus, we entreat, your own.

III

" Five were sufficient; for six or seven books are too much : why do you want, Muse, to frolic still? Let there be some stint and an end: now nothing more can Fame give me; my book is thumbed everywhere ; and when Messalla's ${ }^{4}$ pavements shall lie shivered by decay, and Licinus' ${ }^{5}$ towering marble
${ }^{3}$ Nestor's.
${ }^{4}$ M. Valerius Messalla Corvinus, the patron of Tibullus: cf. x. ii. 9. He repaired the Via Latina: cf. Tib. ı. vii. 57. Or "saxa" may perhaps refer to his tomb.

"Tune potes dulcis, ingrate, relinquere nugas?
dic mihi, quid melius desidiosus ages? an iuvat ad tragicos soccum transferre coturnos aspera vel paribus bella tonare modis, praelegat ut tumidus rauca te voce magister, oderit et grandis virgo bonusque puer? scribant ista graves nimium nimiumque severi, quos media miseros nocte lucerna videt.
at tu Romanos lepido sale tingue libellos:
adgnoscat mores vita legatque suos. angusta cantare licet videaris avena, dum tua multorum vincat avena tubas."

Quantus, io, Latias mundi conventus ad aras suscipit et solvit pro duce vota suo! non sunt haec hominum, Germanice, gaudia tantum, sed faciunt ipsi nunc, puto, sacra dei.

shall be dust, yet me shall lips read, and many a sojourner shall carry my poems with him to his fatherland." I ended; when thus replied the ninth of the Sisters, ${ }^{1}$ her hair and vesture stained with unguent: "Can you, ungrateful man, resign your pleasant trifles? Tell me, what better thing when idle will you do? Wish you to adapt your comic shoe to the tragic buskin, or in even-footed measures ${ }^{2}$ to thunder of rough wars, that a pompous pedagogue may dictate you in hoarse tones, and tall girl and honest boy hate you? Let those themes be written by men grave overmuch, and overmuch austere, whom at midnight their lamp marks at their wretched toil. But do you dip your little Roman books in sprightly wit ; let Life recognize and read of her own manners. To a thin pipe you may appear to sing, if only your pipe outblow the trump of many."

IV

Ho! How great a concourse of the world at Latin altars makes and pays their vows ${ }^{3}$ for their Chief! These are not the joys of men only, Germanicus: nay, the very gods now, I ween, offer sacrifice.

V

While you give rings to girls, Macer, you have ceased, Macer, to possess rings yourself. ${ }^{4}$
${ }^{4}$ i.e. you have lost your qualification as a knight: of. Juv. xi. 43. The ius anulorum (right to wear a gold ring) was possessed by senators, knights, and magistrates.

Than old Auctus' antiques nothing is more odious-I prefer drinking vessels moulded from Saguntine clay -when he prates of the crazy pedigrees of his silver plate, and by his chattering makes the wine vapid. "These are cups that once belonged to Laomedon's table: to win these Apollo by his harp-playing built the walls of Troy. With this mixing-bowl fierce Rhoetus joined battle with the Lapithae $:^{1}$ you see the workmanship is dinted by the fight. These two goblets are valuable because of aged Nestor: the dove is burnished by the rubbing of the Pylian thumb. This is the tankard in which the grandson of Aeacus ${ }^{2}$ ordered a fuller draught and stronger wine be mixed for his friends. In this bowl most beautiful Dido pledged Bitias when her banquet was given to the Phrygian hero.": When you have much admired these ancient chasings, in Priam's cups you will drink Astyanax. ${ }^{4}$ long ages, albeit pious incense invokes thee, prayers salute thee first, to thee the consul's joyous purple, to thee every magistrate pays court, yet this thou countest more-it has been thy fortune, Janus, in thine own month to see our god ${ }^{1}$ returning home!

IX

Hylas, when blear-eyed, Quintus, wás willing lately to pay you three-quarters of his debt; now he is oneeyed he is willing to give half. Take it at once : brief is the opportunity for gain; if he become blind, Hylas won't pay you a penny.

X

Bassus has bought a cloak for ten thousand sesterces, a Tyrian of the best colour. He has made a bargain. "Did he buy so cheap?" you ask. Aye, he is not going to pay.

XI

That thou hast come to thy city Rhine knows already, for he too hears the voices of thy people : Sarmatian tribes as well, and Hister and the Getae, the very shout of our new-found gladness has affeared. While in the sacred Circus applause long sustained revered thee, no man perceived the steeds had four times been started. No chief has Rome so loved, nor thee so much, Caesar, as now ; thee too, albeit she would, she cannot now love more.

Say, Toga, welcome gift to me of my eloquent friend, of what flock wouldst thou be the fame and glory? Did the Apulian herbage of Spartan Phalanthus flourish for thy sake, where Galaesus ${ }^{2}$ floods the tilth with Calabrian waters? or did Tartessian Baetis, nurse of Hiberian flocks, wash thee too on the back of a Spanish sheep ? ${ }^{3}$ or has thy wool counted the mouths of many-cleft Timavus, whereof trusty Cyllarus, ${ }^{4}$ now amid the stars, once drank ? Egyptian beans grow with a less slender filament, of thicker mould are lily leaves that fall beneath the overpowering sun; nor does the spider dart about a web so slender, nor the pendulous silkworm ply a work so light. Denser stands the chalk on old Fabulla's face, denser swells the bubble in tumbled water, and stronger is the bladder-net that confines knotted locks, and the Batavian pomade ${ }^{1}$ that transforms Latin tresses. Whose labour is in the bowl? was it of artist Mys or of Myron? Is this Mentor's hand, or, Polyclitus, thine ? ${ }^{1}$ No darkness gives it a dull leaden hue, nor is it a cloudy mass that shrinks from assaying fires. The workmanship yields not to the material: even so the moon rounds her orb when she shines in fullness with all her light. There stands a he-goat prankt in the Aeolian fleece of Theban Phryxus ${ }^{2}$; by such his sister would more gladly have been borne; such a goat no Cinyphian barber ${ }^{3}$ would deform, and thou thyself, Lyaeus, wouldst consent to his cropping thine own vine. ${ }^{4}$ A Love in gold, two-winged, loads the back of the beast; the pipe of Pallas sounds from his tender lips; in such wise the dolphin, blithe with the burden of Methymnaean Arion, ${ }^{5}$ bore him, no unmelodious freight, o'er tranquil seas. Let no hand from the master's crowd of slaves, only thy hand, Cestus, first fill this peerless gift for me with fitting nectar; Cestus, the banquet's pride, mix thou the Setine: the very boy, the very goat, methinks, is athirst. Here, where far-gleaming shines the fane of Fortune that gives return, ${ }^{1}$ was of late, happy in its lot, an open space; here, graced by the dust of Northern war, stood Caesar, shedding from his face effulgent light ; here, her locks wreathed with bay, and white of vesture, Rome with voice and hand greeted her Chief. A second gift, too, ${ }^{2}$ attests the high merit of the spot: a consecrated arch stands in triumph over the conquered nations; here stand two chariots and many an elephant; he himself in gold is master of the mighty cars. This gate, Germanicus, is worthy of thy triumphs: such an approach it beseems the City of Mars to possess.

LXVI

To Augustus bring, ye Camenae, pious incense and victims on behalf of your Silius. Lo! by a son's consulship Caesar, our chief and only ward, bids the twice six axes return, and the door of the poet sire resound to the lictor's noble staff. ${ }^{3}$ Yet this remains for his joy to wish for, the blessed purple of a third consul. ${ }^{4}$ Though to Pompeius the senate, to his son-in-law ${ }^{5}$ Caesar, gave sacred honours, and peaceful Janus thrice enrolled their names, ${ }^{\text {b }}$ yet thus would Silius rather reckon repeated consulships.

* M. hopes that Silius' second son (who, however, died shortly afterwards) may become consul, three consulships thus falling to one house. The father was consul A.d. 68 : viI. lxiii. 9.
${ }^{5}$ Agrippa, who married Julia, Augustus' daughter.
${ }^{6}$ The consular Fasti were kept in the Temple of Janus.

The boy does not yet announce to you the fifth hour, and yet you, Caecilianus, come already as my guest, although the fourth hour, hoarse with pleading, ${ }^{1}$ has only just enlarged the bail-bonds, ${ }^{2}$ and the arena still wearies the wild beasts at Flora's games. ${ }^{3}$ Come, run, Callistus, and call back the unwashed servants; let the couches be spread: Caecilianus, sit down. You ask for warm water: my cold has not yet arrived; ${ }^{4}$ my kitchen is closed and chill, its fire unlaid. Come rather at daybreak; for why should the fifth hour keep you waiting? For a breakfast you come late, Caecilianus.

LXVIII

He who has seen the orchards of Corcyra's king ${ }^{5}$ will prefer, Entellus, the country your house contains. That jealous winter may not sear the purple clusters, and chill frost consume the gifts of Bacchus, your vineyard blooms shut in transparent glass, and the fortunate grape is roofed and yet unhid. So shine a woman's limbs through silk, so is the pebble counted in pellucid water. What power has not Nature wished for mind? Barren winter is bidden to bear autumn's fruits. ${ }^{6}$

LXIX

You admire, Vacerra, the ancients alone, and praise none but dead poets. Your pardon, pray, Vacerra: it is not worth my while, merely to please you, to die.

LXX

Great as is the restraint, so great is the eloquence of placid Nerva, ${ }^{1}$ but modesty restrains his power and genius. Though he might have drained sacred Permessis ${ }^{2}$ in full draughts, he chose to slake his thirst with diffidence, content to wreathe his poet's brow with a slender crown, and to leave his sail unspread to the breeze of his own fame. Yet that he is the Tibullus of our time each man knows who keeps in mind the lays of learned Nero. ${ }^{3}$

LXXI

Four pounds of silver plate in winter's season you sent me, Postumianus, ten years ago. While I hoped for a greater weight-for gifts should stand fixed or grow-there arrived two pounds more or less. The third and the fourth year brought much inferior presents: in the fifth was one pound, Septicius' ${ }^{4}$ work to boot. I came down to an eight-ounce oblong dish in the sixth year; the next was given me a bare half-pound in the shape of a small cup.

[^30]The eighth sent me a dessert-spoon less than two ounces weight: the ninth produced-with difficulty -a snail-pick lighter than a needle. The tenth year now has nothing to send me: to your four pounds, Postumianus, return '

LXXII

Though you are not yet smart with purple and smoothed by the rough bite of dry pumice, you haste, little book, to follow Arcanus, whom most lovely Narbo-Narbo Paterna ${ }^{1}$ of the learned Vo-tienus-now bids return to declare the laws and to yearly office. 'Twill be your lot-to be sued for with equal prayers-to see that spot and to have this friend. How I wish I could become my own little book '

LXXIII

Istantius, ${ }^{2}$ than whom none other is held more true of heart, before whom is none in pure sincerity, if thou wouldst give strength and spirit to my Muse, and lookest for poems that shall live, give me something to love. 'Twas Cynthia made thee a poet, wanton Propertius; of Gallus the inspiration was fair Lycoris; tuneful Tibullus' renown sprang from lovely Nemesis; Lesbia prompted thee, learned Catullus. The Pelignians ${ }^{3}$ will not spurn me, nor Mantua, ${ }^{4}$ as a bard, if some Corinna, if some Alexis be my own.

While late at night a Lingonian--just returning from the Covered ${ }^{2}$ and Flaminian Ways-was making for his hired lodging, catching his big toe, he put out his ankle, and lay upset-all his length on the ground. What should the Gaul do ? how could he move? The huge master had a single tiny slave, so thin that he could barely carry the smallest lantern : chance came to the rescue of the wretched man, and brought aid. Four branded slaves were carrying a common corpse-the pauper's burying-ground receives a thousand such-these slaves the weak attendant besought in a low voice to shift the lifeless body wherever they wished. The load is changed and the cargo is lifted high and crammed in-a huge cargo in a narrow bier. This individual seems to me, Lucanus, to be the one of many to whom can justly be said, " O dead Gaul." ${ }^{3}$

LXXVI

"Tell me the truth, Marcus, tell me, please : there is nothing I would more gladly hear." Such, Gallicus, both when you recite your poems and whenever you plead a client's cause is your prayer

Whoever has so lived, to him, even did the end come in middle age, life has been made longer than was appointed. ${ }^{2}$

Sports which a Phlegraean victory ${ }^{3}$ might have craved for its own, which thy Indian pageant, Lyaeus, ${ }^{4}$ might have craved to be thine, Stella, honouring the Northern triumph, has given; and yet-what modesty is his, what loyalty !-he holds them too small. Not for him suffices the wealth of Hermus, dark with tumbled gold, and of Tagus echoing in the Western world. Each day provides its own gifts; the cord's rich burden ${ }^{5}$ fails not, and full-laden spoil falls upon the people; now come in sudden showers sportive tokens; ${ }^{6}$ now the bounteons ticket assigns the beasts of the arena; now the bird is glad to fill a lap that gives it safety, and-that it be not torn asunder-

LXXIX

All the female friends you have are either old crones or ugly, and fouler than old crones. These, as your companions, you conduct and drag about with you through parties, colonnades, theatres. In this way, Fabulla, you are lovely, in this way young.

LXXX

Thou restorest to us, Caesar, the wonders of our honoured grandsires' age, and lettest not the times of old die, now that the ancient fashions of the Latin arena are renewed and valour fights with more natural hand. ${ }^{3}$ So also for the old-world fanes is kept their honour while thou art Governor, and the Cot $^{4}$ under a Jove so worshipped keeps its sanctity ; ${ }^{5}$ so, while thou dost found the new, thou bringest back, Augustus, the former things: what is, and what was, are owed to thee !

2 There were thirty races. The consuls exhibited games on their eutrance into office.

${ }^{3}$ Domitian had himself written poetry before he became emperor.

LXXXI

Not by the mystic rites of Dindymene, nor by the bull, ${ }^{1}$ the spouse of Nile's heifer, in a word by no gods and goddesses does Gellia swear, but by her pearls. These she hugs, these she kisses passionately, these she calls her brothers, these she calls her sisters, these she loves more ardently than her two sons. If by any chance the unhappy woman should lose them, she says she would not live even an hour. Ah, how usefully now, Papirianus, would the hand of Annaeus Serenus be employed ! ${ }^{2}$

LXXXII

While the throng offers to you, Angustus, its querulous petitions, the reason why we too offer to our Master a few poems, is because we know that a god can have leisure at once for business and for the Muses, and that even this wreath of song pleases you. Bear with your bards, Augustus: we are your treasured pride, we are your earlier ${ }^{3}$ care, and your delight. Not alone does the oak ${ }^{4}$ beseem you, or Phoebus' laurel; ${ }^{5}$ let there be made a civic crown for you of ivy ${ }^{6}$ as well!

Thou hast a name that bespeaks the season of the budding year, when Attic bees lay waste the brieflived spring; a name meet to be writ in colour by Acidalia's ${ }^{2}$ pen, which Cytherea joys to embroider with her own needle; a name which letters strung of Indian pearls, which a jewel of the Heliades ${ }^{3}$ rubbed by the fingers, should mark; which cranes with wings that write upon the skies ${ }^{4}$ should lift to heaven ; which it beseems to be in Caesar's house alone.

O Pontico, il perche tu mai immembri, ma usi l'adultera tua sinistra, e l'amica mano serve a Venere, pensi tu che ciò sia niente? E una sceleragine, credimi, ma si grande e tale, che appena tu stesso la concepisci nell'animo tuo. In fatti Orazio immembrò una volta sola perche generasse tre figliuoli; Marte una volta perche la casta Ilia dasse i gemelli. L'uno e l'altro avrebbe distrutto ogni cosa se quel masturbatore avesse abbandonato i sozzi piaceri alle sue mani. Credi che la natura stessa delle cose ti dice: "ciò che, O Pontico, distruggi colle dita è un uomo."

So mayst thou, Apollo, be rich in plains of Myrina, ${ }^{1}$ so mayst thou alway delight in hoary swans, ${ }^{2}$ so may thy learned Sisters ${ }^{3}$ serve thee, and thy Delphic priestess speak not falsely to any man ; so may the Palace court and love thee, if, at thy asking, our kindly Caesar's nod give quickly to Stella the twice six axes. ${ }^{4}$ Then I, happy, and a debtor for my vow, will bring thee a victim to thy rustic altar, a steer with gold-gilt horns. I asked Vindex lately whose art and happy toil fashioned Alcides. He laughed-for this is his way -and slightly nodding, said: "Don't you, a poet, know your Greek? The base has an inscription and shows the name." I read "of Lysippus": I thought it was of Phidias !

And this you may add: "He who could endure such things was fit to mould the race of man." ${ }^{2}$

Of Democrituses, Zenos, and enigmatic Platos, and of every philosopher shown, dirty and hirsute, on a bust, you prate as if you were successor and heir of Pythagoras; and before your chin hangs a beard certainly no less than theirs. Ma ciò che tardi si senti agli ircosi, e turpemente ai pelosi, tu volontieri lo comporti rigido nelle effeminate coscie. You, who know the origins of the schools and their arguments, tell me this: what dogma, Pannychus, is it to be a pathic?

XLVIII

Seeing that you swore, Garricus, by your sacred rites and by your head, that I was heir to a quarter of your estate, I believed you-for who would willingly damn his own wishes?-and I kept warm my hope by continual presents, among which I sent you a Laurentian boar of unusual weight: you would imagine it came from Aetolian Calydon. ${ }^{1}$ But you at once invited both people and Senate; a bilious Rome is still belching my boar. Partheniana fuit quondam, memorabile vatis munus: in hac ibam conspiciendus eques, dum nova, dum nitida fulgebat splendida lana, dumque erat auctoris nomine digna sui: nunc anus et tremulo vix accipienda tribuli, quam possis niveam dicere iure tuo.
quid non longa dies, quid non consumitis anni?
haec toga iam non est Partheniana, mea est.

Ingenium mihi, Gaure, probas sic esse pusillum, carmina quod faciam quae brevitate placent. confiteor. sed tu bis senis grandia libris qui scribis Priami proelia, magnus homo es? nos facimus Bruti puerum, nos Langona vivum : tu magnus luteum, Gaure, Giganta facis.

[^57]Parthenian was it once, a bard's memorable gift: ${ }^{1}$ in this I went conspicuous as a knight, while it was new, while it brightly shone with glossy wool, and while it was worthy of its giver's name. Now it is an old crone, and one scarcely to be accepted by a doddering pauper, which you may without contradiction call "snowy." 2 What does not length of days, what do ye not consume, ye years? This toga is no longer Parthenian: it is mine. ${ }^{3}$

L

You prove to me, Gaurus, that my genius is in this way a puny one, because I make poems that please by their brevity. I confess it. But you, who in twice six books write of Priam's wars in grand style, are you a great man? I make Brutus' boy, ${ }^{4}$ I make Langon live: you, great man as you are, Gaurus, make a giant of clay.

LI

What thou didst alway crave of the High Gods, though thy brother said nay, this has fallen to thee, Lucanus-the earlier death. He envies thee; for Tullus longed, though younger than thou, to go before thee to the Stygian shades. Thou dwellest in Elysian fields, and, denizen of that pleasant grove, now for the first time desirest to be without thy brother ; and, if Castor ${ }^{5}$ has now come alternate from the lustrons stars in Pollux' stead, thou dost counsel him not to return again. ${ }^{6}$

If I seem too big a book and long, with my colophon delayed, read a few epigrams: I shall be a little book. Often a page of mine ends with a small poen : make me as short for yourself as you like. ${ }^{1}$

II

Too hurried before, the composition of my tenth book has made me now recall the work that had slipt from my hands. ${ }^{2}$ You will read some things you know, but polished lately by the file; the greater part will be new ; reader, be kind to both, reader, who are my wealth; for when Rome had given you to me, she said: "We have nothing greater to give you. By him will you escape unthankful Lethe's sluggish stream, and will in your better part survive. Messalla's marble the wild-fig sunders, and boldly the mule-driver laughs at Crispus' steeds broken in two. ${ }^{3}$ But writings thefts do not injure, and time befriends them, and alone these monuments know not death."
${ }^{3}$ M. is M. Val. Messalla Corvinus, the patron of the poet 'libullus' $c f$. viri. iii. 5. The Crispus is probably C. Passienus Crispus of the time of Claudius, and stepfather of Nero.

Abstract

Vernaculorum dicta, sordidum dentem, et foeda linguae probra circulatricis, quae sulpurato nolit empta ramento Vatiniorum proxeneta fractorum, poeta quidam clancularius spargit et volt videri nostra. credis hoc, Prisce? voce ut loquatur psittacus coturnicis et concupiscat esse Canus ascaules? procul a libellis nigra sit meis fama, quos rumor alba gemmeus vehit pinna: cur ego laborem notus esse tam prave, constare gratis cum silentium possit?

IV

Quı legis Oedipoden caligantemque Thyesten, Colchidas et Scyllas, quid nisi monstra legis? quid tibi raptus Hylas, quid Parthenopaeus et Attis, quid tibi dormitor proderit Endymion ? exutusve puer pinnis labentibus? aut qui odit amatrices Hermaphroditus aquas? quid te vana iuvant miserae ludibria chartae?
hoc lege, quod possit dicere vita "Meum est." non hic Centauros, non Gorgonas Harpyiasque invenies: hominem pagina nostra sapit. sed non vis, Mamurra, tuos cognoscere mores nec te scire: legas Aetia Callimachi.

1 Beakers with four nozzles, said to be in imitation of the nose of Vatinius, a Beneventan cobbler in Nero's time : cf. xiv. xcvi.; Juv. v. 46. As to the sale of broken glass, $c f$. 1. xli. 3-5.

III

The scurrilities of home-born slaves, low railing, and the foul insults of a hawker's tongue, which the broker of shattered Vatinian glasses ${ }^{1}$ would reject as the price of a sulphur match, a certain skulking poet scatters abroad, and would have them appear as mine. Do you believe this, Priscus? that a parrot speaks with the voice of a quail, and Canus ${ }^{2}$ longs to be a bagpipe-player? Far from poems of mine be black repute, poems which lustrous fame uplifts on pinions white. Why should I toil to be known so evilly when stillness can cost me nothing?

IV

You, who read of Oedipus and Thyestes neath a darkened sun, of Colchian witches and Scyllas-of what do you read but monsters? What will the rape of Hylas avail you, what Parthenopaeus and Attis, what the sleeper Endymion? or the boy stript of his gliding wings? 'or Hermaphroditus who hates the amorous waters? Why does the vain twaddle of a wretched sheet attract you? Read this of which Life can say: "'Tis my own." Not here will you find Centaurs, not Gorgons and Harpies : 'tis of man my page smacks. But you do not wish, Mamurra, to recognize your own manners, or to know yourself. Read the Origins of Callimachus. ${ }^{3}$

This little book, not learned enough, nor very strict in tone, yet not all unrefined, go, my Thalia, and carry to eloquent Pliny : ${ }^{1}$ short is your labour, when you have crossed the Subura, in breasting the steep path. ${ }^{2}$ There you will at once notice Orpheus, spraysprinkled, crowning his drenched audience, ${ }^{3}$ and the wild beasts marvelling at his song, and the Monarch's bird ${ }^{4}$ that bore to the Thunderer the ravished Phrygian; there stands the modest dwelling of your own Pedo, ${ }^{5}$ its frieze graven with eagle of lesser wing. But take heed you give no drunken knock on Eloquence's door at a time that is not yours; all the day he devotes to serious study, while he prepares for the ears of the Hundred Court ${ }^{6}$ that which time and posterity may compare even with Arpinum's pages. ${ }^{7}$ Safer will you go at the time of the latekindled lamps; that hour is yours when Lyaeus is in revel, when the rose is queen, when locks are drenched. O temperate Formiae, darling shore! When he flies from stern Mars' town, and weariedly puts off distracting cares, 'tis you Apollinaris prefers to every spot. Not so does he admire his blameless wife's darling Tibur, nor the retreats of Tusculum or Algidus, not so does he admire Praeneste and Antium; Circe's witching headland or Dardan Caieta ${ }^{3}$ are not longed for, nor Marica ${ }^{4}$ nor Liris, nor Salmacis ${ }^{5}$ bathed in the Lucrine's waters. Ocean's surface is ruffled by a gentle breeze; yet is not the sea-floor still, but a slumberous swell bears on the gaudy shallop with the assisting air, as from the fluttering of a girl's purple fan, when she shuns the heat, there comes refreshing cool. The line seeks not its prey in the distant sea, but the fish, descried from above, draws down the cord cast from bed or couch. If ever Nereus feel the power of Aeolus, ${ }^{1}$ the table, safe-supplied from its own store, laughs at the storm; the fishpond feeds turbot and home-reared bass; to its master's call swims the dainty lamprey; the usher summons a favourite gurnard, and, bidden to appear, aged mullets put forth their heads. But when dost thou, Rome, permit to enjoy those delights? How many days of Formiae does the year put to the credit of one tied to city business? $O$ happy porters and bailiffs! Those delights are procured for your masters, they belong to you!

He who shall weigh well her poems will say no maid was so roguish, will say no maid was so modest. Such-I would believe - were Egeria's ${ }^{3}$ pleasantries in Numa's dripping grot. With her as your school-mate, or with her as your teacher, you would have been more learned, Sappho, and have been chaste; but coy Phaon, had he seen her with Sappho and by her side, would have loved Sulpicia. Here when is a day my own? I am tossed on the deep ocean of the city, and life is wasted in sterile toil while I maintain ${ }^{3}$ stubborn acres of suburban land and a house near to you, holy Quirinus. But he is not alone a lover who day and night haunts thresholds, and such loss of time ill befits a poet. By the Muses' rites, to be hallowed by me, by all the gods I swear: careless client as I am, I love you yet.

Then after six months, when she demanded two thousand, I offered a thousand: she would not accept them. Two, or perhaps three kalends had passed, and voluntarily she herself asked for four gold pieces : ${ }^{2}$ I did not give them. She bade me send her a hundred sesterces, but this sum, too, seemed to me stiff. A starveling allowance of a hundred farthings allied me with a patron: this she wanted; I said I had given them to my slave. Could she come down to lower depths? She achieved this. Come, let duteous Rome recognise October's kalends, the birthday of eloquent Restitutus ${ }^{2}$ : with all your tongues, and in all your prayers, utter wellomened words; we keep a birthday, be still, ye lawsuits! Away with the needy client's wax taper! and let useless three-leaved tablets and curt napkins wait for the jollity of cold December. ${ }^{3}$ Let richer men vie in gifts: let Agrippa's ${ }^{4}$ pompous tradesman bring mantles, the fellow-citizens of Cadmus ${ }^{5}$; let the defendant in a charge of assault and drunkenness at night send his counsel dinner-suits. #### Abstract hic totus volo rideat libellus et sit nequior omnibus libellis. qui vino madeat nec erubescat pingui sordidus esse Cosmiano, ludat cum pueris, amet puellas, nec per circuitus loquatur illam, ex qua nascimur, omnium parentem, quam sanctus Numa mentulam vocabat. versus hos tamen esse tu memento Saturnalicios, Apollinaris : mores non habet hic meos libellus.

Let it be drenched in wine and not ashamed to be stained with rich Cosmian ${ }^{1}$ unguents; let it play with the boys, love the girls, and in no roundabout phrase speak of that wherefrom we are born, the parent of all, which hallowed Numa ${ }^{2}$ called by its own name. Yet remember that these verses are of the Saturnalia, Apollinaris: this little book does not express ${ }^{3}$ my own morals.

XVI

You, reader, who are too strait-laced, can now go away from here whither you will: I wrote these verses for the citizen of wit; now my page wantons in verse of Lampsacus, ${ }^{4}$ and beats the timbrel with the hand of a figurante of Tartessus. ${ }^{5}$ Oh, how often will you with your ardour disarrange your garb, ${ }^{6}$ though you may be more strait-laced than Curius and Fabricius! You also, O girl, may, when in your cups, read the naughtiness and sportive sallies of my little book, though you may be from Patavium. ${ }^{7}$ Lucretia ${ }^{8}$ blushed and laid down my volume; but Brutus was present. Brutus, go away : she will read it.

You have given me, Lupus, a suburban farm, but I have a bigger farm in my window. A farm can you call this, style this a farm, wherein a plant of rue ${ }^{1}$ forms a grove of Diana, which the wing of a shrill cicala covers, which an ant eats up in a single day; for which a shut rose's petal would be a canopy ; wherein grass is no more found than a leaf for Cosmus' perfumes or green pepper; wherein a cucumber cannot lie straight, nor a snake harbour its whole length ? The garden gives short commons to a single caterpillar ; a guat, when it has consumed the willow, expires, and a mole is my ditcher and ploughman. No mushroom can swell, no figs can split, or violets expand. My borders a mouse ravages, and is feared by the tenant as much as a Calydonian boar, and my crop, lifted by the claws of flying Procne, ${ }^{2}$ lies in a swallow's nest; and, though he stands shorn of his sickle and his appurtenances, there is no room by half for Priapus. My harvest, when gathered, hardly fills a snail-shell, and we store the must in a pitch-sealed nut. You have made a mistake, Lupus, but only by one letter; for when you gave me a fee I would you had given me a feed. ${ }^{3}$
${ }^{3}$ Lupus gave a praedium (land), and M. wanted a prandium (lunch), the difference being the letter n . "Fec" in law means an estate in land that descends to the holder's heir ; here used in the, sense of landed property.

Read six wanton verses of Caesar Augustus, you spiteful fellow, who with a sour face read words of Latin:
" Because Antony handles Glaphyra, ${ }^{2}$ Fulvia has appointed this penalty for me, that I, too, should handle her. I to handle Fulvia? What if Manius were to implore me to tręat him as a Ganymede? Am I to do it? I trow not, if I be wise. 'Either handle me or let us fight,' she says. And what that my person is dearer to me than my very life? Let the trumpets sound." ${ }^{3}$

You justify for certain my sprightly little books, Augustus, who know how to speak with Roman bluntness. ${ }^{4}$

Lydia is as widely developed as the rump of a bronze equestrian statue, as the swift hoop that resounds with its tinkling rings, ${ }^{5}$ as the wheel so often cameo by Arellius, probably the painter mentioned by Pliny, N.H. xxxv. 37, as having outraged his art by depicting prostitutes. Fulvia is represented as sitting nude upon a bed, and holding Octavius by the arm. He is in full armour, and is beckoning to two soldiers in the rear. The cameo has been reproduced in a rare book published at the Vatican Press in 1786, and entitled "Monumens de la vie privée des douze Césars d'après une suite de pierres gravées sur leur règne."

This woman I am said to have embraced in a marine fishpond: I don't know ; I think I embraced the fishpond itself.

XXII

That with your hard mouth you rub the soft lips of white-cheeked Galaesus, that you consort with a naked Ganymede, 'tis too much-who denies it?-but let that be enough; at least refrain from waking passions with lascivious hand. Towards beardless boys this is a greater sinner than your yard, and your fingers create and hasten manhood. Thence comes a goatish odour, and quick-springing hair, and a beard, a wonder to mothers, and baths in broad day are displeasing. Nature has separated the male : one part has been produced for girls, one for men. Use your own part.

Sila is ready to marry me on any terms, but on no terms am I willing to take Sila to wife. Yet, when she urged me: "You shall bring me, as bride's dower, in gold a million sesterces," I said : "What can be smaller than that? And I will have no marital relations with you even on the wedding-night, nor shall my bed be the same as yours; and I will embrace my mistress, and you shall not forbid me, and, if bidden, you shall send me your own maid. Before your eyes an attendant shall give me wanton kisses, whether he is my own or yours. You shall dine with me, but you shall recline so apart from me that my robe is not touched by yours. Kisses you shall give me but rarely, and you shall not give them uninvited; and you shall not give them like a bride, but like an aged mother. If you can suffer that, if there be nothing you refuse to endure-you will find a man, Sila, who is willing to marry you!"

XXIV

Wwie I escort you and bring you home, while I lend my ear to your babbling, and praise whatever you say and do, how many verses, Labullus, might have seen the light! Does not this seem to you an injury if, what Rome reads, the stranger asks for, the knight does not laugh at, the senator knows by heart, the pleader praises, the poet carps at-this because of you is lost? You are a man of iron if you can show any amorous power, Flaccus, when your mistress prays you for six helpings of fish-pickle, or asks for two slices of tunny, or a skinny lizard-fish, and does not think herself worth a whole bunch of grapes-a woman to whom her maid delightedly carries anchovy sauce in a dark earthenware platter, to be immediately gulped down; or, who, when she has hardened her brow and laid aside all shame, solicits five greasy skins to make a small mantle. But let my mistress demand of me a pound of nard, ${ }^{1}$ or emeralds, or a pair of sardonyxes, and not look at any but prime silk from the Tuscan street, or let her beg a hundred gold coins just as if they were pence. There is not an hour comes amiss to you, Phyllis, for plundering me in my infatuation: with such cunning do you rob me. Now your lying maid laments because a mirror has been left behind, or a jewel drops from your finger, or a stone from your ear; at one time silks lost by theft may be a means of profit, at another there is shown to me an empty casket of Cosmus' perfume; now a crumbling jar of dark Falernian is asked for that a chattering wise-woman may exorcise your dreams; ${ }^{1}$ now, to induce me to buy, either a huge bass or a two-pound mullet, a rich woman friend has proposed a dinner at your house. I know that I ought to offer some plea in defence of a most obstinate three-years' indolence ; yet no such plea could have secured an acquittal even amid those City pursuits in which we more easily succeed in appearing troublesome than dutiful; ${ }^{1}$ much less in this provincial solitude, where, unless we study even immoderately, retirement is at once without solace and without excuse. Hear, then, my reasons. Of these this is the most important and first of all : I miss that audience of my fellow-citizens to which I had grown accustomed, and seem to myself a pleader in a strange court; for whatever is popular in my small books my hearer inspired. That subtlety of judgment, that inspiration of the subject, the libraries, theatres, meeting-places, where pleasure is a student without knowing it--to sum up all, those things which fastidiously I deserted I regret, like one desolate. Added to this is the back-biting of my fellow-townsmen, and envy ousting judgment, and one or other evilly disposed persons-a host in a tiny place-a circumstance against which it is What Maecenas, a knight sprung from ancestral kings, ${ }^{1}$ was to Flaccus and Varius and illustrious Maro, ${ }^{2}$ this chattering fame and antique records shall tell the nations and provinces, Priscus Terentius, that you were to me. You create my genius, you create whatever power I seem to show; you give me the free man's right of idleness.

V

The too lengthy labour of my eleventh and tenth books has been shortened, and has filed down my work to a brief compass. Let idle men, to whom you have given protected leisure, read a fuller number; do you, Caesar, read these : perhaps you will read those too! ${ }^{3}$

VI

Mildest of princes, Nerva ${ }^{4}$ has attained the Ausonian hall: we may enjoy now full draughts of Helicon. Steadfast Honour, cheerful Clemency, chastened Power now return; long lasting Terrors have turned to flight. This prayer thy peoples and nations make, duteous Rome-may thy Chief be ever such as he, and he abide long! Blessings on thy heart-the heart of few-and on thy manners, such as a Numa, such as a Cato in cheerful mood might possess! To be bounteous, to lend protection, to enlarge narrow incomes, and to bestow gifts which even the gracious gods have scarce given, is now Here indolently, with pleasant toil, I frequent Boterdus and Platea (such in Celtiberian lands are the uncouth names!); I enjoy a huge unconscionable sleep which often not even the third hour breaks, and I pay myself now in full for all my sleeplessness for thrice ten years. Unknown is the toga; rather, when I ask for it, the first covering at hand is given to me from a broken chair. But you do this that you may add a new name to the purple records, ${ }^{1}$ or be sent to govern Numidian or Cappadocian tribes. But I, whom you compel to break off my slumber in the middle, and to bear and endure the morning mud, what do I look for? When my protruding foot gapes out of a broken shoe, and a sudden downpour of heavy rain falls, and my home-born slave, who has taken away my cloak, does not appear when I bawl for him, a slave approaches my frozen ear and "Laetorius asks you to dine with him," he says. For twenty sesterces a head? Not I: I prefer starvation to getting a dinner as reward, while you get a province, and to our performing the same services and not earning the same recompense.

XXIX

Hermogenes ${ }^{1}$ is as great a thief, Ponticus, of napkins $^{2}$ as I hardly imagine even Massa ${ }^{3}$ was of money. You may watch his right hand and hold his left, ${ }^{4}$ he will discover some method of withdrawing a napkin. So a stag's breath sucks up a clammy snake, ${ }^{5}$ so Iris ${ }^{6}$ plucks up the waters that will afterwards fall from on high. Of late when a discharge was sought for wounded Myrinus, Hermogenes filched four napkins ; ${ }^{7}$ when the praetor wanted to throw his white napkin, ${ }^{8}$ Hermogenes pilfered his napkin from the praetor. When no one had brought a napkin, in fear of theft, Hermogenes pilfered the table-cloth from off the table. If this, too, is not to be found, Hermogenes is not afraid to strip the valance from round the couches and the feet of the tables. Although the arena is burning under an immoderate sun, the awning is drawn back when Hermogenes arrives. Sailors in a panic hurry to brail up their canvas whenever Hermogenes has appeared at the port. Linen-clad, bald priests and the company with the timbrels ${ }^{9}$ fly when Hermogenes has taken his stand among the worshippers. To a dinner Hermogenes has never brought a napkin: from a dinner Hermogenes has always carried a napkin home.
${ }^{5}$ According to Pliny (N.H. viii. 50) stags with their breath drew serpents out of their holes : $c f$. also Lucr. vi. 765.

There went along a three-legged trucklebed and a two-legged table, and, alongside a lantern and bowl of cornel, a cracked chamberpot was making water through its broken side; the neck of a flagon was lying under a brazier green with verdigris; that there were salted gudgeons, too, or worthless sprats, the obscene stench of a jug confessed-such a stench as a whiff of a marine fish-pond would scarcely equal. Nor was there wanting a section of Tolosan cheese, nor a four-year-old chaplet of black pennyroyal, and ropes shorn of their garlic and onions, nor your mother's pot full of foul resin, the depilatory of dames under the walls. ## LXX

When of late a bow-legged home-born slave carried his towels for Aper, and a one-eyed old crone sat guard over his scanty toga, and a ruptured anointer offered him his drop of oil, he was a stern and harsh censor of drinkers; he used to shout that the cups ought to be smashed, and the Falernian poured away that the knight, just bathed, was drinking. But after three hundred thousand sesterces came to him from an old uncle, he doesn't know how to go home from the warm baths sober. Oh, how great is the influence of fretwork chalices and five long-haired slaves! Then, when he was poor, Aper was not thirsty!

Wheat, millet, and barley and beans you used to sell when you were an attorney : you buy them now you are a farmer.

While a fleet from Nile is bringing you crystal glass, accept some cups from the Flaminian Circus. ${ }^{1}$ Are these the more "dreadnought" ${ }^{2}$ or are they who send such presents? But in cheap vessels is a double advantage : these embossed cups attract no thief, Flaccus, and they are not cracked by water too hot. What of this, too, that the attendant is not nervous while a guestedrinks, and shaky hands do not fear a slip? This, also, is something: you will drink a health in these vessels, Flaccus, if you have to break the cup afterwards. ${ }^{3}$

LXXV

Polytimus hurries off to girls, Hypnus unwillingly confesses that he is a boy, Secundus has buttocks yard-fed, ${ }^{4}$ Dindymus is effeminate but wishes not to seem so, Amphion might have been born a girl. The caprice of these boys, and their haughtiness, and their querulous disdain, I prefer, Avitus, to five times two hundred thousand sesterces of dower.

${ }^{4}$ There is a play in the Latin on glande. The metaphor is taken from the feeding of hogs on acorns. As to the ambiguous meaning of " yard," cf. Shak. L.L.L. v. ii. 676.
${ }^{5}$ Things are so cheap it does not pay to sell.

LXXVII

While with many prayers he addressed Jupiter, standing all the time, with eyes upturned, on the tips of his toes, Aethon in the Capitol broke wind. Men laughed, but the Father of the Gods himself was offended, and amerced his client in domiciliary dinners for three nights. ${ }^{1}$ After this outrage wretched Aethon, when he is minded to enter the Capitol, makes beforehand for Paterclius' latrines, and lets off his piece ten and twenty times. But, however much he has taken precautions by this crepitation, 'tis with constricted buttocks he addresses Jove!

LXXVIII

I wrote nothing against you, Bithynicus. Do you refuse to believe me, and require me to swear? I prefer to pay the debt. ${ }^{2}$

To escape Menogenes in the warm baths and about the baths is impossible, try what artifice you will. He will grab the warm hand-ball with right and left, that he may be able often to score to your account the balls he catches. ${ }^{2}$ He picks up and will restore to you the flaccid bladder-ball from the dust, even if he has already bathed, is already in his dinner slippers. If you take your towels, he will speak of them as whiter than snow, although they are dirtier than an infant's bib. While you are arranging with a comb your scanty hairs, he will say these are Achilles' locks that you have ordered. He will with his own hands bring you the dregs from the bottom of the smoky wine-jar, ${ }^{3}$ and he wipes the moisture on your brow. Everything he will praise, will admire everything, until, having endured to the end a thousand boredoms, you say " Come and dine."

I was writing an epic; you began to write one: 1 left off, that my poems should not stand in rivalry with yours. My Thalia shifted to tragic buskins: you also fitted on yourself the long train of tragedy. I struck the strings of a lyre practised by the Calabrian Muses : ${ }^{1}$ you, ambitious man, snatch from me the new quill. ${ }^{2}$ I venture satire: you strain to be a Lucilius. ${ }^{3}$ I sport with light elegies: you, too, sport with the same thing. What lesser art can there be? I begin to model epigrams : in this quarter, too, my fame is already sought after by you. ## XIX.-Porri Capitati

Mitrit praecipuos nemoralis Aricia porros: in niveo virides stipite cerne comas.
XX.—Napi

Hos Amiternus ager felicibus educat hortis:
Nursinas poteris parcius esse pilas.
XXI.-Asparagi

Mollis in aequorea quae crevit spina Ravenna non érit incultis gratior asparagis.

XXII.-Uvae Duracinae

Non habilis cyathis et inutilis uva Lyaeo, sed non potanti me tibi nectar ero.

XXIII.—Ficus Chiae

Chia seni similis Baccho, quem Setia misit, ipsa merum secum portat et ipsa salem.
${ }^{1}$ But, according to Pliny (N.H. xix. 33), the finest came from Egypt, those from Ostia and Aricia ranking next.
${ }^{2}$ The navew is also called the French turnip (Napus brassica), in (Greek ṕá申us or Bouvids, and has a root elongated like a carrot. It likes a sloping situation, and a light and dry soil, whereas the ordinary rape thrives in the marsh : Col. ii. 10. Amiternum was famed for them, and Nursia came second: Plin. N.H. xix. 25.
${ }^{3}$ Which often produced asparagus of three to the pound;

BOOK XIII. xix-xxint

XIX.-Headed Leeks

Woody Aricia sends the finest leeks ${ }^{1}$ : observe on the white stem the green blades.

XX.-Navens

These the land of Amiternum nurtures in its fertile gardens; the round rapes of Nursia you will be able to eat at less cost. ${ }^{2}$

XXI.-Asparagus

The succulent stalk that has grown in watery Ravenna ${ }^{3}$ will not be more palatable than wild asparagus.

XXII.-Hard-skinned Grapes

I am a grape unfit for the wine-cup and worthless to Lyaeus, but, if you do not drink me, I shall be nectar to you. ${ }^{4}$

XXIII.—Chian Figs

A Chian fig is like the old wine Setia has sent you; it carries in itself new wine, and in itself salt too. ${ }^{5}$

Pliny, N.H. xix. 19 (2). According to Athenaeus (ii. 62) the planted asparagus grew to a great size, but the best were not the cultivated. The wild was called corruda: Plin. supra.

4 These grapes were kept to be eaten, and not turned into wine. They were when eaten seemingly very palatable. The temperate Augustus speaks of himself (Suet. Aug. lxxvi). as eating in his litter an ounce of bread and a few duracinae.
${ }^{5}$ The Chian fig was not only pungent ( $c f$. vir. xxv. 8), but also juicy.

THE EPIGRAMS OF MARTIAL

XXIV.-Cydonea

Sı tibi Cecropio saturata Cydonea melle ponentur, dicas: "Haec melimela placent."

> XXV.-Nuces Pineac

Poma sumus Cybeles: procul hinc discede, viator, ne cadat in miserum nostra ruina caput.

XXVI.-Sorba

Sorba sumus, molles nimium tendentia ventres: aptius haec puero quam tibi poma dabis.

XXVII.-Petaliam ${ }^{1}$ Caryotarum

Aurea porrigitur Iani caryota Kalendis; sed tamen hoc munus pauperis esse solet.

XXVIII.-Vas Cottanorum

Haec tibi quae torta venerunt condita meta, si maiora forent cottana, ficus erat.

XXIX.-Vas Damascenorum

Pruna peregrinae carie rugosa senectae sume : solent duri solvere ventris onus.
${ }^{1}$ petadium $\beta$, petavivum T, palathion Salmasius.

[^189]400

XXIV.-Quinces

If quinces steeped in Attic honey ${ }^{1}$ shall be put before you, you would say: "These honey-apples are delicious."

XXV.-Pine Cones

We are Cybele's apples ${ }^{2}$; depart far hence, traveller, lest our downfall descend on your wretched head.

XXVI.-Service Berries

We are service berries that astrict too relaxed bowels; you will better give these apples to your boy ${ }^{3}$ than to yourself.

XXVII.-A Stem with Dates

A gilt date is offered on the kalends of January ${ }^{4}$; but yet this is wont to be the gift of a poor man.

XXVIII.—A Jar of small Syrian Figs

These Syrian figs, which, stored in a round conical jar, have reached you, would, if larger, ${ }^{5}$ be figs.

XXIX.-A Jar of Damascene Plums

Take plums wrinkled by shrivelling old age abroad ${ }^{6}$ : they are used to lighten the load of an obstinate stomach.
${ }^{4}$ By poor clients to their patrons : cf. vin. xxxiii. 11, 12.
${ }^{5}$ Cottana were small figs from Syria : Plin. N.H. xiii. 10 ; of. Iv. Ixxxviii. 6 and vis. liii. 7.
${ }^{6}$ cf. v. xviii. 8. Pliny (N.H. xv. 12) says that D. plums grown in Italy did not shrivel for lack of sun.

XXX.-Caseus Lunensis

Caseus Etruscae signatus imagine Lunae praestabit pueris prandia mille tuis.

XXXI.-Caseus Vestinus

Si sine carne voles ientacula sumere frugi, haec tibi Vestino de grege massa venit.

XXXII.-Caseus Fumosus

Nos quemcumque focum nec fumum caseus onnem, sed Velabrensem qui bibit, ille sapit.

XXXIII.—Casei Trebulani

Trebula nos genuit; commendat gratia duplex, sive levi flamma sive domamur aqua.

XXXIV.-Bulbi

Cum sit anus coniunx et sint tibi mortua membra, nil aliud bulbis quam satur esse potes.

XXXV.—Lacanicae

Filia Picenae venio Lucanica porcae: pultibus hinc niveis grata corona datur.

[^190]XXX.-Cheese from Lana

Cheese, stamped with the crest of Etruscan Luna, will afford your slaves a thousand lunches. ${ }^{1}$

XXXI.-A Vestinian Cheese

If you wish without meat to take a frugal breakfast, this lump comes to you from a Vestinian ${ }^{2}$ flock.

XXXII.-Smoked Cheese

It is not every heat, or every smoke that a cheese imbibes; but that which has imbibed Velabran ${ }^{3}$ has flavour.

XXXIII.-Cheese from Trebula

Trebula ${ }^{4}$ gave us birth; a double excellence recommends us; we are tamed by a moderate fire or by water.

XXXIV.—Bulbs

Since your wife is an old woman, and your members are nerveless, you can do nothing but satisfy your hunger with bulbs. ${ }^{5}$

XXXV-Lucanian Sausages

Daughter of a Picenian sow, ${ }^{6}$ here I come, a Lucanian sausage; with me you may put a toothsome garnish round white pottage.
cheese was good to eat, whether toasted, or moistened in water.
${ }^{5}$ Bulbs were eaten as aphrodisiacs: ff. III. lxxv. 3; Athen. ii. 64.
${ }^{6}$ cf. Iv. xlvi. 8 ; v. Ixxviii. 9. According to Apicius (ii. 4) the sausage was compounded of minced pork flavoured with pepper, cumin, savory, rue, parsley, and bay-leaves. It was called in Low Latin salsicia, whence the word sausage.

XXXVI.-Cistella Olivarum

Halc quae Picenis venit subducta trapetis inchoat atque eadem finit oliva dapes.

XXXVII.-Mala Citrea

Aut Corcyraei sunt haec de frondibus horti, aut haec Massyli poma draconis erant.

XXXVIII.--Colustrum

Subripurr pastor quae nondum stantibus haedis de primo matrum lacte colustra damus.

XXXIX.-Haedus

Lascivum pecus et viridi non utile Baccho det poenas; nocuit iam tener ille deo.

Candida si croceos circumfluit unda vitellos, Hesperius scombri temperet ova liquor.

XLI.-Porcellus Lactans

Lacte mero pastum pigrae mihi matris alumnum ponat, et Aetolo de sue dives edat.
${ }^{1}$ of. 1. xliii. 8.
${ }^{2}$ They were either from King Alcinous' garden : cf. x. xciv. 2, or were golden apples of the Hesperides.
${ }^{3}$ The first milk given by the mother : Plin. N. H. xxviii. 33 .

XXXVI.-d Small Box of Olives

These olives which have reached you, withdrawn from the oil presses of Picenum, ${ }^{1}$ begin and also end our repasts.

XXXVII.-Citrons

These were either from the branches of Corcyra's garden, or they were apples, the Massylian dragon's charge. ${ }^{2}$

XXXVIII.—Beestings

Beestings, ${ }^{3}$ whereof the shepherd has robbed the kids while not yet able to stand, I give you from the first milk of the dams.

XXXIX.-A Kid

Let the wanton beast, and one of no service to the green vine, pay the penalty; though young, it has already injured the god. ${ }^{4}$
XL.-Eggs

If a white liquid surround the saffron-coloured yolks, let the sauce ${ }^{5}$ of Spanish mackerel season the eggs.
XLI.--A Sucking Pig

Let a rich man set before me the nursling, fed on milk alone, of a lazy mother, and let him eat of an Aetolian boar. ${ }^{6}$
${ }^{4}$ Bacchus. The kid has nibbled the vine. In Anth. Pal. x. 75 and 79 the wounded vine retorts. The goat was a victim sacred to Bacchus. $\quad$ i.e. garum : cf. xin. cii.
${ }^{6}$ Like that slain by Meleager : cf. viI. xxvii. 2.

XLII.-Apyrina et Tubures

Non tibi de Libycis tubures et apyrina ramis, de Nomentanis sed damus arboribus.

XLIII.-Idem

Lecta suburbanis mittuntur apyrina ramis et vernae tubures. quid tibi cum Libycis?

XLIV.-Siumen

Esse putes nondum sumen ; sic ubere largo et fluit ${ }^{1}$ et vivo lacte papilla tumet.

XLV.-Pulli Gallinacei

Sı Libycae nobis volucres et Phasides essent, acciperes, at nunc accipe chortis aves.

XLII.-Pomegranates and Tuber-apples

I no not give you tuber-apples ${ }^{1}$ and pomegranates from Libyan boughs, but from my Nomentan trees.

XLIII.-The Same

Culled from suburban boughs are sent you pomegranates and home-grown tuber-apples. ${ }^{2}$ What do you want with Libyans?

XLIV.—Sow's Paps

You would think it not yet a dish of udder, so fullHowing is the dug, and so does the pap swell with living milk. ${ }^{3}$

XLV.-Fowls

If I possessed guinea-fowls and pheasants you should receive them; but now receive the birds of the farmyard.

XLVI.-Early Peaches

Of little worth should we peaches have been on the branches of our mother tree; now on adoptive boughs we peaches are prized. ${ }^{4}$
story how Domitian on the day before his murder, being offerel some tuber-apples, commanded their being kept for the morrow, " si modo uti licuerit."
${ }^{3}$ The thing sent is apparently the udder cooked, which is so full of milk it seems alive.
${ }^{4}$ Friedländer explains of peaches grafted on an apricot (malum praecox) tree ; cf. Calp. ii. 42, of peaches grafted on a plum tree,

XLVII.-Panes Picentini

Picentina Ceres niveo sic nectare crescit ut levis accepta spongea turget aqua.

XLVIII.-Boleti

Argentum atque aurum facilest laenamque togamque mittere ; boletos mittere difficilest.

XLIX.-Ficedulae

Cum me ficus alat, cum pascar dulcibus uvis, cur potius nomen non dedit uva mihi?

> L.-Terrae Tubera

Rumpimus altricem tenero quae vertice terram tubera, boletis poma secunda sumus.

LI.-Turdorum Decuria

Texta rosis fortasse tibi vel divite nardo, at mihi de turdis facta corona placet.

LII.-Anates

[^192]
BOOK XIII. xlvil-lil

XLVII.—Picenian Loaves

The bread of Picenum grows big with its white nectar as a light sponge swells when it has taken in water. ${ }^{1}$

XLVIII.-Mushrooms

Silven and gold, and a mantle, and a toga it is easy to send ; to send mushrooms is difficult. ${ }^{2}$

XLIX.—Beccaficos

Seema that figs mourish me, seeing that I am fed on sweet grapes, why did not the grape rather give me my name? ${ }^{3}$
L.—Truffles

We truffles ${ }^{4}$ that burst through the nurturing soil with our soft heads are of earth's apples second to mushrooms.

> LI.-A Decade of Fieldfares

A chaclet woven of roses or rich spikenard perhaps pleases you, but one made of fieldfares ${ }^{5}$ pleases me.

LII.-Ducks

Let a duck certainly be served up whole; but it is tasty only in the breast and neck: the rest return to the cook.
${ }^{3}$ "Why am I not called uredula?"
${ }^{4}$ In Greek vis $\partial \alpha$. See Athen. ii. 60 and Plin. xix. 11. They grow of their own accord, particularly in dry and sandy soil. Pliny calls them "callosities of the earth" (terrae callum). Juvenal (v. 115) refers to the fable (rejected by Plutarch: Quaest. Conv. iv. 2) that truffles were produced by thunderstorms.
${ }^{\circ}$ Fieldfares were often strung round a hoop: cf. mi. xlvii. 10.

THE EPIGRAMS OF MARTIAL

LIII.-T'urtures

Cum pinguis mihi turtur erit, lactuca, valebis; et cocleas tibi habe. perdere nolo famem.

LIV.-Perna

LIV.-Gammon of Bacon

Let me have Cerretanian ${ }^{2}$ gammon served to me, or it may be sent from the Menapians ${ }^{3}$; let gourmets devour ham.
LV.-Ham

It is freshly cured: make haste, and do not put off your dear friends; for let me have nothing to do with an old ham.
LVI.-Womb

You perhaps the womb of a virgin pig may allure more: the maternal womb of a pregnant sow allures me. ${ }^{4}$

LVII.-Egyptian Beams

You will scoff at this vegetable from Nile and its tenacious threads when with teeth and hands you draw out its stubborn fibres. ${ }^{5}$

LVIII.-Goose's Liver

See how the liver is swollen bigger than a big goose! In wonder you will say: "Where, I ask, did this grow?" ${ }^{\circ}$
"raneoso in mandendo," i.e. like spider's webs. Athenaens (iii. 2) gives a long description of it from Theophrastus.
${ }^{6}$ Geese were fattened on figs by gourmets: Hor. Sat. in. viii. 88 ; and their livers grew to a great size: Juv. v. 114. See generally Athen. ix. 32. The practice is recalled by the word fegato. Italian for liver.

A rabbit delights in dwelling in burrowed holes: he taught foes the art of secret paths. ${ }^{2}$

LXI.-Heathcocks

Or all flavours of fowls the most tasty is said to be that of Ionian ${ }^{3}$ heathcocks.

LXII.-Fatted Fowls

The hen is easily fattened on sweetened meal ; it fattens, too, on the dark. ${ }^{4}$ Ingenious is gluttony!

LXIII.-Capons

That the cock might not grow thin by over indulgence, he has been gelded. Now he will be to me a Gaul. ${ }^{5}$

LXIV.-The Same ${ }^{-}$

In vain the hen submits to her sterile husband. This bird it beseemed to have been the bird of Mother Cybele. ${ }^{6}$
${ }^{4}$ Ut immotue facile pinguescant, in obscuro continentur: Sen. $E p$. exxii. 4.

LXV.-Partridges

This bird is very rarely served on Italian tables: one often sees it playing in the fishpond. ${ }^{1}$

LXVI.—Doves

Do not violate with profane tooth tender doves, if the rites of the goddess of Cnidos ${ }^{2}$ have been entrusted to you.

LXVII.-Wood-pigeons

Ringdoves check and blunt the manly powers: let not him eat this bird who wishes to be lickerish.

LXVIII.-Witwalls

Tue green bird ${ }^{3}$ is beguiled by canes ${ }^{4}$ and nets at the season when the young grape is swelling with juice yet immature.

LXIX.-Cattae -

Umbria has never supplied us with Pannonian cattae; these are the gifts Pudens prefers to send to his lord. ${ }^{5}$

LXX.-Peacocks

Dost thou admire it, oft as it spreads its spangled wings, and hast the heart, unfeeling man, to deliver this bird to a cruel cook?
golden oriole ( $O$. galbula), the greenfinch, and the green woodpecker.
${ }^{+}$Limed canes : ff. Ix. liv. 3 ; xIv. cexviii.
${ }^{5}$ P., who came from Umbria, preferred to send these birds, which he had reared in Umbria, as a present to his patron, rather than birds of his native country. The catta is unknown.

LXXIV.-Anseres

Haec servavit avis Tarpeia templa Tonantis. miraris? nondum fecerat illa deus.

LXXV.-Grues

Turbabis versus nec littera tota volabit, unam perdideris si Palamedis avem.

LXXVI.-Rusticulae

Rustica sim an perdix quid refert, si sapor idem est? carior est perdix. sic sapit illa magis.
${ }^{1}$ This may be an allusion to Aesopus, the tragic actor, who served up a dish consisting only of singing birds: Plin, N.H. x. 72. Housman, however, thinks that garrula $=$ telltale, and that the bird could say how impure the mouths were that fed on it.
${ }^{2}$ A river of the Colchians from which the Argonants are said to have brought the pheasant (the Phasian bird).
${ }^{3}$ Because luxury had not at that time introduced them into Italy. As to Numidicae, cf. iII. Iviii. 15.

LXXII.—Pheasants

I was transported first by Argo's keel; ere that Phasis ${ }^{2}$ was all I knew.

LXXIII.-Guinea-fowls

Although Hannibal ate his fill of Roman geese, yet the barbarian never ate the birds of his own. land. ${ }^{3}$

LXXIV.-Geese

This bird saved the Thunderer's Tarpeian fane. Do you wonder ? a god had not yet built it. ${ }^{4}$

LXXV.—Cranes

You will disorder the lines, and the letter will not fly complete if you make away with a single bird of Palamedes. ${ }^{5}$

LXXVI.— - oodcock

Whether I am woodcock or partridge, what does it matter if the flavour be the same? A partridge is dearer. 'Tis thus it has better flavour. ${ }^{6}$
${ }^{4}$ The cackling of geese saved the Capitol b.c. 390 from a night attack by the Gauls. Now it can run no risk. Domitian rebuilt the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, which had been twice burnt : Suet. Dom. v; ix. iii. 7.
${ }^{5} \mathrm{P}$. is said to have copied the shape of the letters he invented from the order of the flight of cranes. In Ix. xiii. 7 the letter is $r=V$. M. is probably playing on two meanings of versus (line). See also Luc. v. 716, which M. had in mind.

LXXIX.-Live Mullets

The mullet breathes in the sea-water brought with him, but, already torpid, he begins to languish. Give him the fresh sea; he will be strong. ${ }^{5}$

LXXX.—Lampreys

The big lamprey that swims in the Sicilian deep sea has not the strength to plunge when its skin is scorched by the sun. ${ }^{6}$

LXXXI.-T'urbots

However wide is the dish that bears the turbot, yet the turbot is wider than the dish.
${ }^{5}$ According to Friedländer fish were brought alive to table in glass vessels and boiled before the eyes of the guests, who observed the changing hues of the dying fish : $c f$. Sen. Quaest. iii. 17, who observes that it sounds like a fable that the eyes were fed before the throat.
${ }^{6}$ According to Arist. (H.A. viir. iii. 4) turtles, when their shells were scorched by the sun, were unable to sink, and so were canght; see also Plin. N.H. ix. 12. M. says the same thing of the lamprey. Such animals were called $\pi \lambda \omega \bar{\omega} a \mathfrak{c}$ or futae: Macrob. Sat. iii. 15. The best lampreys came from the Straits of Messena : ibid.

${ }^{3}$ A river in Campania near Minturnae. Marica was its tutelary nymph who had a grove near it: Hor. Od. .III. xvii. 7.
${ }^{4}$ The scarus is really unknown. It was a farourite fish, brought originally, according to Pliny (N.H. ix. 29), by Tiberius from the Carpathian Sea, and planted by Optatus, praefectus classis, in the sea between Ostia and Campania. It was preserved for the first five years. Athenaens (vii. 113) gives a description.

Cerulean Liris, ${ }^{3}$ which Marica's wood guards, is fond of us: from hence we prawns come in greatest numbers.

LXXXIV.-Sea-bream

Or this sea-bream, ${ }^{4}$ which has come lean from the sea-waves, the entrails are good eating; as to the rest it has poor flavour.

LXXXV.-Coracinus

You of all fish are scrambled for, Coracinus, ${ }^{5}$ in the markets of Nile; to Alexandria's gourmets no fish has renown surpassing yours.

LXXXVI.-Sea-urchins

Alithough that sea-urchin may prick your fingers with its sharp shell, yet, when it lays aside its husk, it will be soft. ${ }^{6}$

5 An unknown but valued fish peculiar to the Nile: Plin. N.H. xxxii. 19, who says it was not caught in winter except on the same few days: N.H. ix. 24. See also Athen. vii. 81 , who says it was so called from its continually moving the pupils of its eyes (кópaı). It was regarded as in every way superior to the mullus: Athen. iii. 93.
${ }^{6}$ It was eaten with vinegar and honey satuee, parsley, and mint : Athen. iii. 41. Athenaeus (loc. cit.) tells the story of a Spartan who at a dinner bit a sea-urchin, shell and all, in ignorance and cursed the viand ( $\phi \dot{\alpha} \gamma \eta \mu \alpha \mu$ 站 $\partial$ ), adding he would not be beaten by it, but would never eat another.

${ }^{3}$ A small fish, ordinarily little esteemed, but common in the lagoons of Venice. Inferior to a blenny: Diog. L. ii. 67. Juv. (xi. 37) treats the price of a gobius as an insignificant sum, as compared with the price of a mullus.

4 The mosts prized lupi were called lanati or lanei from the whiteness and softness of their flesh : Plin. N.H. ix. 28. The lupus may have been the bass, one name of which is the sea-wolf, from its rapaciousnes (Grk. $\lambda \alpha \beta \rho \alpha \xi) ; c f$. the proverb $\lambda \alpha \beta \rho a \chi \epsilon s$ Mı $\lambda \eta{ }_{\eta} \sigma t 0 t$ of greedy persons; and generally Athen. vii. 86 .

LXXXVII.-Purple Mussels

Cloaks dyed in our blood, ${ }^{1}$ ingrate, you put on; and this is not enough : we are your food. ${ }^{2}$

LXXXVIII.—Gudgeons

In Venetian territory, however choice may be the entertainment, the beginning of the dinner is wont to be a gudgeon. ${ }^{3}$

LXXXIX.-The Bass

Sort and white ${ }^{4}$ the bass breasts the mouths of Euganean Timavus, ${ }^{5}$ fed on fresh water and the salt of the sea.

XC.-The Gilthead

Not every gilthead ${ }^{6}$ deserves praise and a big price, but the one that feeds only on Lucrine shellfish.

> XCI.—The Sturgeon

Send sturgeon to Palatine tables; let rare offering adorn ambrosial ${ }^{8}$ feasts.
${ }^{5}$ A river, now the Timavo, forming the boundary of Istria and Venetia and falling into the Adriatic.
${ }^{6}$ The same as the Greek $\chi$ púvoфpus (the zoological name of which is Chrysophrys aurata), and probably not the John Dory, the name of which is Zens faber. It feeds on molluscs.
${ }_{7}$ According to Pliny (N.H. ix. 27) the fish, though rare, was little esteemed in his time.
${ }^{8}$ i.e. of the emperor. M. anticipates the English common law whereby "whales and sturgeons are royal fish, and belong to the King by his prerogative ": 7 Coke's Reports, 16 A. Macrob. (Sat. iii. 16) says that, at a banquet of the Emperor Septimius Severus, the fish was ushered in by crowned attendants to the sound of flutes, quasi numinis pompa.

${ }^{3}$ A one-horned, cloven-hoofed animal, not unlike a wild goat: Plin. N.H. xi. 106. It was a ferocious animal, and came from Gaetulia: Opp. De Ven. ii. 445. Its flesh was esteemed by rich epicures: Juv. xi. 140.
${ }^{4}$ C., having by accident shot his favourite stag, prayed the gods to grant hin perpetual grief, and was turned inte a cypress, the symbol of mourning: Ov. Met. x. 109 et seqq. 424

BOOK XIII. xcı-xcyi

XCII.-Hares

Amongst birds the fieldfare, if my judgment can aught decide, amongst quadrupeds the primest delicacy is a hare.

XCIII.-A Boar

The terror in the land of Diomedes, the bristly beast that fell beneath an Aetolian spear, ${ }^{1}$ was such as this.

XCIV.—Does

Fon his tusk is the boar dreaded, his horns defend the stag; we, unwarlike does, what are we but a prey?
XCV.-The Oryx

Not the meanest quarry among the beasts of morning shows, ${ }^{2}$ the savage oryx ${ }^{3}$ costs me the death of how many dogs !

XCVI.-The Stag

Was this the stag tamed by your halter, Cyparissus, ${ }^{4}$ or rather was it your stag, Silvia ${ }^{5}$ ?

XCVII.-The Milk-foal of the Wild Ass

While he is a young wild ass, and is fed by his mother alone, the lalisio ${ }^{6}$ has, as a nursling, this name, but one short-lived. ${ }^{7}$
${ }^{5}$ Silvia was the danghter of Tyrrheus, the huntsman of King Latinus. Ascanins, the son of Aeneas, shot her favourite stag, and thus brought about the war between the Trojans and the Latins : cf. Verg. Aen. vii. 483 et seqq.
${ }^{6}$ Pliny (N.H. viii. 69) says that the flesh of the lalisio was much appreciated.

7 When weaned it is called a wild ass.

XCVIII.-The Roe

You will see a roe poised on the summit of a rock; ${ }^{l}$ one can only hope she will fall; she is showing contempt of the dogs.

XCIX.-The Gazelle

You shall give a gazelle as a pet to your little son. The crowd loves to procure its dismissal by fluttering their togas. ${ }^{*}$

> C.-The Wild Ass

A beautiful wild ass comes; the hunt of the Indian tusk must be sent away; now shake your togas no longer. ${ }^{3}$
CI.—Venafran Oil

Tins oil the berry of Campanian Venafrum ${ }^{4}$ has distilled for you; your unguent, as often as you use it, smells too of that oil.

CII.—Fish Sauce of the Allies

Receive this proud sauce, ${ }^{5}$ made of the first blood of a mackerel breathing still, an expensive gift.

CX.-Surrentine Wine

Drink you Surrentine? ${ }^{1}$ Take not beakers of painted murrine, ${ }^{2}$ nor of gold : these wines will supply you with their native cups. ${ }^{3}$

CXI.-Falernian Wine

From presses of Sinuessa ${ }^{4}$ has the Massic come. Stored in what consul's year do you ask ? there was no consul then. ${ }^{5}$

CXII.-Setine Wine

Setia high-poised, that looks on the Pomptine levels, has sent from a tiny city casks of aged wine. ${ }^{6}$

CXIII.-Fundanian Wine

This Fundanian the rich autumn of Opimius' year ${ }^{7}$ produced. The consul squeezed out the must, and himself drank the wine.

CXIV.-Trifoline Wine

I am not, I confess, of the first brand of Lyaeus; yet among wines my vintage shall be the seventh. ${ }^{\varepsilon}$
${ }^{6}$ The favourite wine of the Emperor Augustus: Plin. N.H. xiv. 8 (1). Pliny describes it as less strong than Surrentine, less rough than Alban, and more fiery than Falernian : N.H. xxiii. 21.
${ }^{7}$ b.c. 121, a famous year : cf. 1. xxvi. 7. Athen. (i. 48) describes it as a heady wine.
${ }^{8}$ The wine was called trifolinum because it matured tertio foliorum exortu, i.e. in three years. It had an earthy flavour : Athen. i. 48; and is called by Pliny (N.H. xiv. 8 (6)) plebeium. But it is praised by Juv. (ix. 56).

CXIX.-Nomentanum

Nomentana meum tibi dat vindemia Bacchum : si te Quintus amat, commodiora bibes.

CXX.—Spoletinum

De Spoletinis quae sunt cariosa lagonis malueris quam si musta Falerna bibas.
${ }^{1}$ A stimulating and vigorous wine, to be laid down: Athen. i. 48.
${ }^{2}$ Pliny says (N.H. xiv. $8(3)$ ) that it was considered a medicine "'austeritate nimia continendae utile alro." It improved after six years: Athen. i. 48.
${ }^{3}$ From Messena, in Sicily. It was a sweet and light wine: Athen. i. 48.
${ }^{4}$ i.e. it is as good as any wine.

CXV.-Caecuban Wine

Generous Caecuban ${ }^{1}$ is ripened at Amyclae by Fundi, and the vine grows green, born in the middle of the marsh.

CXVI.-Signine Wine

Will you drink Signine that constricts relaxed bowels? That you may not check them too much, let your thirst be sparing. ${ }^{2}$

CXVII.-Mamertine Wine

If a jar of Mamertine ${ }^{3}$ as old as Nestor be given to yon, it can bear any name you please. ${ }^{4}$

CXVIII.-Tarraconian Winé

Tarraco, that will yield only to Campanian vineyards, begot this wine that vies with Tuscan jars. ${ }^{5}$

CXIX.-Nomentan Wine

A Nomentan vintage gives you this wine of my own. If Quintus loves you, you will drink better wines. ${ }^{6}$

CXX.-Spoletine Wine

Crusted wines from Spoletine flagons you will prefer to the drinking of Falernian must. ${ }^{7}$ s "Nobilitantur elegantia Tarraconensia, et conferuntur. Italiae primis": Plin. N.H. xiv. 8 (6).
${ }^{6}$ Yet M. says that Nomentan, when it is old, can compare with any wine : cf. I. cv. 4. It ripened quickly, and was drinkable after five years: Athen. i. 48.
${ }^{7}$ i.e. F. new wine. Yet Spoletine was a poor wine: $c f$. xiv. cvi. In Athen. (i. 48) it is described as swect and golden in colour.

If white-haired you are set on dyeing your aged locks, accept-why be hairless?--these balls from Mattiacum. ${ }^{-2}$

XXVIII.-A Sunshade

Accept a sunshade to subdue the overpowering heat; even though there be a wind, ${ }^{3}$ your own awning will cover you.

XXIX.-A Broad-brimmed Hat

I will be a spectator with you in Pompey's theatre, for blasts of wind are apt to deny the people an awning. ${ }^{4}$
XXX.-Hunting-spears

They will counter boars, and will wait for the lion's rush; they will pierce bears if the hand be but firm enough.

XXXI.--A Hunting-knife

If you lament that your hunting spear with its long blade has been struck down, this short weapon will closely engage a huge boar.

CIII.-A Strainer for Wine and Snow

Writh the snow I contain, I warn you, subdue your cups of Setine $:^{5}$ in a poorer wine you may dip linen bags.
${ }^{4}$ Pliny classes Surrentine earthenware cups for excellence with those from Asta and Pollentia, and from Saguntum in Spain: N.II. xxxv. 46.
${ }^{5}$ cf. v. lxiv. 2. The colum nivarium was a metal colander in which a lump of frozen snow was placed, and the wine was strained through it into the cup or other wine vessel.

CIV.-A Bag for Straining through Snow

My linen also knows how to liquefy snow: no colder spirts the water from your strainer. ${ }^{1}$

CV.-Small Jugs for Table-service

Cold water will not be wanting; there will not be wanting hot, if you ask for it; but do not you be dainty with a craving thirst.

CVI.-An Earthenvare Jug

Here is given you a red jug with a spreading handle: Stoic Fronto used to go to this for cold water.

CVII.-Tankards ${ }^{2}$

The Satyrs love us, Bacchus loves us; us, too, the drunken tigress which has been taught to lick the wine-dabbled feet of her master. ${ }^{3}$

CVIII.-Saguntine Chalices

Take cups made of Saguntine clay, which without anxiety ${ }^{4}$ your servant may handle and guard.

CIX.-Gemmed Chalices

See how the gold gleams, gemmed with the fire of Scythian emeralds! How many fingers has that chalice stripped! ${ }^{5}$
${ }^{4}$ They are "dreadnought": cf. xit. lxxiv. 3, and Ep. xciv. supra. M. speaks poorly of Saguntine clay-ware; cf. vill. vi. 2; but Pliny praises it: N.H. xxxv. 46.
${ }_{5}$ Rich men often ornamented their cups with jewels from their finger rings: cf. Juv. v. 42.

${ }^{1}$ i.e. the flask will flavour the wine. Nard and other perfumes were however often mixed with wine: Juv. vi. 303, 464 ; and foliata alludes to this practice. The foliatum was the same as nardinum, a mixture of spikenard and other perfumes, a list of which is given in Pliny (N.H. xiii. 2).
${ }^{2}$ A nimbus (lit. storm-cloud) is supposed to have been a glass vessel with apertures for sprinkling wine, like a water-ing-pot. The name may have been derived from the cloud on the glass caused by the snow-cooled wine.
${ }^{3}$ Murra was perhaps a natural earth, and may have been 478

spar : Plin. N.H. xxxvii. 8. See the anthorities collected in Mayor's note to Juv. vii. 133. Murrine vases have however been regarded as porcelain, and porcelain vases agreeing with Pliny's description are said to have been found. These vases were first brought to Rome by Pompey after his victory over Mithridates in b.c. 63. Enorinous sums were paid for them, Nero paying 300 talents (say $£ 60,000$ ) for a drinking cup.

1 The cocleare was a spoon with a point at one end, and smaller (cf. viri. lxxi. 9, 10) than the ligula. The point was used to pick snails (coclece) or shellfish out of their shells; hence the name. Petr. 33 speaks of coclearia of "not less than half a pound" weight used for eating eggs, but then they were Trimalchio's spoons. Pliny (N.H. xxviii. 4) tells us that it was a superstition to perforate empty egg-shells as a defence against evil spells.

BOOK XIV. cxxi-cxxy

CXXI.—A Snail-pick

I am convenient for eating snails, and no less useful for eating eggs. Do you know why I am rather called a snail-pick ? ${ }^{1}$

CXLV.-A Frieze Surtout

Such is my whiteness, the beauty of my wool is such, that you would choose to wear me even in the midst of harvest. ${ }^{2}$

CXLVI.-A Pillow

Anoint your head with Cosmus' unguent, your pillow will smell of it : when your hair has lost the fragrance the feathers retain it.

CXLVII.-Friese Coverlet.s ${ }^{3}$

Your coverlet of wool is bright with purple brocade. What is the use of it if an aged wife freeze you?

CXLVIII.-Blankets

That the sacking on your bare bed might not show, we sisters, knit together, have come to you. ${ }^{4}$
${ }^{3}$ Gausapum was woollen cloth having, like frieze, a thick nap on one side only, as distinguished from amphimatlum, whieh had a nap on both. It was introduced into Rome in the time of the Elder Pliny's father: Plin. N.IF. vin. 1xxiii.

4 The lodix was a small shaggy blanket. Sometimes two were sewed together to form a coverlet. The Emperor Augustus used it as a wrap for warmth in the open air : Suet. Aug. lxxxiii. Lodices came from Verona : cf. Ep. clii.

The renown of so small a statue ${ }^{5}$ is not unknown. Of this boy was Brutus the lover.
${ }^{3}$ This, and the following, describe sigilla (statuettes), which were frequently given at the Satumalia, i.e. on the last two days, which were called Sigitharia : cf. Ans. De Fer. Rom. v. 32 (Festa sigillorum nomine dicta colunt).

I.-Life in the Country

As you ask me what I do while staying in the country I reply shortly. At daybreak I pray to the gods ; I visit my servants and afterwards my fields, and to my staff I assign their proper tasks. Then I read and call on Phoebus, and challenge the Muses. After this I rub my body with oil, and with mild gymnastics gladly brace myself, happy in my mind and free from moneylenders. I lunch, drink, sing, play, bathe, dine, go to bed. Provided my small lamp consume but little oil, such lucubrations as these night furnishes to the nocturnal Muses.

II.-Against Varus

Varus happened to invite me lately to dinner : his appointments were rieh, his dinner was scanty. The table is loaded with gold plate, not with meats ; the attendants set before us much to please the eye, little to tickle the palate. Then I said: "I did not come to stuff my eyes, but my stomach; either provide your provender, Varus, or remove your property.'
age. Among his works were commentarics on Plautus, Horace, Petronins, Seneca, and Martial ; and a Philippid, or Epithalamium on the marriage of Philip and Mary. He was the Rector of the College of Harlem, and his library was pillaged by the Spaniards.

VI.-De Histrionis Poena

Ante Iovis statuam crepuit satur histrio: poenam Iuppiter indixit, vivere de proprio.

III-VI

III.-Against Ponticus

Ponticus, you run about among great lords, and have an eye for everything going ; you pursue, indeed, great things, Ponticus; you are a great man. Ponticus, if you do anything, you do it without a witness, without a crowd round you; you don't make confidants of many, Ponticus; you are a cautious man. Ponticus, nature has fashioned you of remarkable beauty; you would have been worthy of Helen, Ponticus; you are a handsome man. Ponticus, with that voice of yours you might stir adamant; your voice is sweet-toned, Ponticus; you are a sweet man. Ponticus, this error deceives you too as it does other men. Would you have me tell you the truth, Ponticus? Yon are not a man at all.

IV.-On an Old Woman

To the touch you are pleasing, listened to you are pleasing; if you are not seen, you are wholly pleasing; in neither way if you are seen are you pleasing.
V.-On Milo

Mino is not at home; Milo has gone abroad, and his fields are neglected; yet his wife is no less fruitful since. Why his land is sterile, why his wife is fertile, I will declare: his land has no cultivator, his wife has.

XI.-To Scaevola

Scaevola, you dine with everybody, no one with you; another man's cups you drain, no one drains yours. Either make return, or give over looking for invitations: it is a disgrace always to take and give nothing. ${ }^{1}$

XII.-To Auctus

You claim from us what you pay to no one, love; what you accord to no man you clain, Auctus, trust. You claim from us what you don't deserve, hononr ; it is wonderful that what you don't give you expect to be given you.

XIII.-On Filus

Filus possesses cloaks, he surrounds his fingers with gold, but yet Filus is poorer than the poor. ${ }^{2}$ Filus has Tyrian mantles, a thousand appointments, clients, but yet he is poorer than the poor. Filus has a hall furnished in royal style, but yet Filus is poorer than the poor. He hungers and thirsts while he is arrayed in jewels and gold; though he is clad in an embroidered robe he hangers and thirsts. His pallor and emaciation bespeak a load of hunger ; his gold brooch says there is no load of hunger. The wretched man will then hire himself out in slavery for bread, but his gold amulet prevents him being a slave. ${ }^{3}$ If, indeed, he assails any man with suppliant prayers, his silken garb is at hand to prevent him to the Lares, or Household Gods. It was gold in the ease of children of free birth, leather in the case of clindren of freedmen. It enclosed an amulet (a phallus) against the evil eye ; hence it was worn by a victorious general during a trimuph : Macrob. Sut. i. 6.

XIX.-Against Turgidus

'Till nightfall you lunch, till nightfall, Turgidus, you dine, and with all sorts of wine day and night you reek. And, althongh you are careful of your person, you are unwilling to take a wife; your unwillingness says: "A chaste life pleases me." Turgidus, you lie; this is not a chaste life. Would you have me tell you what is a chaste life? Moderation.

XX.-Against Chloe

You are hot for a wanton Ganymede; you are every man's goods; even Hippolytuses ${ }^{1}$ you make heavy with lust. In the meantime many an adulterer hangs about your threshold; you are exposed for sale to anyone: how popular is your taste ! I should have wished to have called you Demophile, ${ }^{2}$ had not your mother wished you should be Chloe: she is unwise and wise. ${ }^{3}$

XXI.-Against Lais

Lass, most beautiful of women, when I ask you what is the price of your favours, you at once require a great ${ }^{4}$ talent. At such a cost, Lais, I do not buy repentance. ${ }^{5}$

XXII.-Against Macrinus

You used to deny, Macrinus, that men could become defunct through funguses: mushrooms made room for your heirs : ${ }^{\circ}$

INDEXES

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES

Apicius, M. Gabius, a noted gourmand of the time of Tiberius. According to Seneca (Al Helv. x.) after spending in gluttony one hundred million sesterces ( $£ 800,000$ ), he found himself oppressed by debt, looked into his accounts, and, discovering he had remaining only ten millions committed suicide. Martial alludes to this (III. xxii.), giving the sums as sixty nillions and ten respectively. Pliny (N.H. ix. 30) speaks of him as ad omne luxus ingenium mirus, and (N.H. x. 68) calls him nepotum omnium altissimus gurges. Athenæus (i. 12) tells how that, hearing lobsters were very large in Libya, he set off at once, but finding from samples that they were of ordinary size, he returned without landing
Apollinaris, Domitius, a learned friend of M. and a favourable critic of hls epigrams (Iv. Ixxvi; vif. xxyi.). M. (x. xxx.) describes his villa at Formiae. He is perhaps the A. alluded to by Pliny (Ep. ix. 13) as consul designatus in A.D. 97
Auctus, Pomponius, a learned lawyer, and admirer of Martial, whose works he knew by heart, vil. ti.
Avitus, Stertinius, Consul A.D. 92. He placed a bust of M. in his library, of which M. writes (ix. Introd. Ep.) the inscription. M. addresses to him an epigram (x. xcvi.) on the charms of country life in Spain

Baetis, the Guadalquivir, the principal river in Hispania Baetica, according to Pliny (iil. 3) the most fertile province in Spain. It flows past Corduba and Hispalis (Cordova and Seville) and falls into the Atlantic N . of Gades (Cadiz). The district was renowned for olives (xII. 1xiii. 2 ; xII. xcviii. 1), which Martial thinks superior to those of Vcnafrum : vit. xxvill. 3; and Statins to Attic, Sil?. II. vil. 29 ; whereas Pliny (xv. 3) thinks the olives of Venafrum superior to those of Bactica and Istrla. The province of Baetica was also celebrated for its wool, to which the waters of the Baetis gave a golden hue, often alluded to by Martial
Bilbilis, the second clty of Hispanla Tarraconensis, on the high road between Emerita and Caesar Augusta (Merlda and Saragossa). Was a municipium in Imperial times. It stood on a rocky height surrounded by the Salo, a river famed for tempering iron. Its slte is at or near Bambola, near Calatayud, a Moorish City bullt by Ayub, the nephew of Musa, the Governor of N.W. Africa at the tlme of the Arab invasion, who used the remains of Bilbllis as a quarry. Bilbilis was also the scene of a battle between A. Metellus and the insurgent Sertorius in b.c. 74

Castricus, some frlend of Martlal, who is addressed in several

epigrams. It would appear from VII. xlii. that he was a poet

Cerialis, a friend of Martial, whom the poct invites to dinner in two epigrams, x. xlviii. and XI. lii. He was a poet and imitator of Virgil and wrote bucolics and a poem on the war of the Giants, XI. lii. 17, 18. Pliny (Ep. ii. 19) addresses one of his letters to him
Claudia Rufina, a lady of British birth, whose refinement Martial praises as equal to that of a Roman or a Greek, xI. liii. She may be the same as the Claudia that married Pudeus, whose marriage the poet celebrates, 1v. xiii.
Crispinus, a low upstart who came from Egypt and hawked salt fish in Rome, Juv. iv. 33. He was raised to the Senate by Nero, and was made a knight by Domitian. Juvenal calls him (i. 26) verna Canopi, and (iv. 31) purpureus scurra Palati; and speaks of him as matutino sudans amomo, iv. 108. He was commander of the Emperor's bodyguard (praefectus praetorio), an office summus equester gradus: Suet. Galb. 14. Martial alludes to him in two epigrams, vil. xcix. and YIII. xlviii.

Decianus, of Emerita, another friend of Martial. He was a Stoic, and is praised for not following the example of suicide, 1. viii. His literary works conferred distinction on his birthplace, I. 1xi. 10. Martial speaks of his learning, simplicity, and rectitude, I. xxxix. ; and addresses to him the Introductory Epistle of his second book. In II. v. he is rallied on the distance M. has to go to call on him, and the dificulty of finding him at home

Earinos, the page of Domitlan, on whose name M. plays in three epigrams, Ix. xi.-xiii. ; and whose dedication of his hair to Aesculapius M. celebrates, IX. xvi. and xvii. ; see also Ix. xxyvi. 3. Statius (Silv. III. iv.) has a long poem on the latter subject Eniellus, a freedman, Domitian's secretary a libellis (petitions). Was privy (with Parthenius) to the Emperor's assassination. M. praises his greenhouse3, viII. Ixviii.
Erotion, a little slave girl, whose death M. laments in three of his finest epigrams, v. xrxiv. and xxxvii.; x. lxi. But in the second epigram mentioned the harmony of the poem is somewhat spoilt by the sarcastic touch at the end
Etruscus, Claudius, father and son. The father came originally as a slave from Smyrna, and wa; emancipated by Tiberius, i: whose household he was. He was successively in the service of Caligula, Claudius, Nero, and Domitian, being under Nero the head of the Imperial treasury. By Domitian he was banished to Campania : Stat. Silv. III. iii. 164, who describes him as hospes, non exul. He married a rich wife, and lived to a great age. His son accompanied his father into exile. M. has epigrams on the father's exile and recall, vi. lxxxiii.; and on his death, vir. xi.; and on the son's baths, vi. xlii., which are also eulogised by Statius (Silv. I. v.) who also writes a lament on the father's death, Silv. III. iii.

Faustinus, Julius, a friend frequently addressed, and a poet whom M. (I. xxv.) advises to publish, and to whom (III. ii. 6) he sends his third book, and (iv. x.) his fourth. He had villas at Anxur (x. li.), Tibur (IV. Ivil.) and Baiae, the latter of which M (III. lviii.) elaborately describes. M. appeals to him (VII. xii.) on the question of the unmalicious

character of his epigrams. Nothing more is known of him
Festus, a friend of the Emperor, who died of a cancer in the face, I. Lxxviii. If he be the same as the Valerius Festus, spoken of by Pliny (Ep. iii. 7) as guilty per summum facinuts of the murder in A.D. 69 of Piso the proconsul of Africa (see Tac. Hist. iv. 49) M. is hardly justified in speaking of his indignas fauces and pia ora. Tacitus, supra, describes him as sumptuosae addelescentiae, neque modica cupiens
Flaccus, a native of Patavium, is addressed by Martial in many cpigrams; he is a guest i:1 x. xlviii., and in XII. Ixxiv. Qartial makes him a present of "dreadnought" glass. He appears to have been a poct, 1. Lxi, and Ixxvi. Some commentators, on the strength of the two epigrams mentioned, have identified him with Valerins Flaceus, the epic poet of the Argonaulica. But it is not certain that Valerius Flaccus was born at Patavium ; Sctia in Campania contends for the honour of bing his birthplace, and the Vatican Ms. has appended the words "Setinus Balbus." And Quintilian says (x. i. 90) multum in Valerio Flacco nuper amisimus; conscquently V. Flaceus must have died before A.D. 90 or 91. the probable date of Quintilian's great work, in which case none of Martial's last six books at least can refer to him. The notes to Ix . ly. 2 and xi. lxx. 3 should be corrected. It is noticeable also that Martial never refers-as might have been expected-to the Argonautica, as he does to the Punica of Silins.
Frontinus, Sextus Juliur, succeeded Petilins Cerealis, and was sueceeded by Agricola, as Governor of Britain. Tacitus (Ag. 17) describes him as "a great man so far as he was permitted to be," i.e. by the Emperor's jealousy. He subdued the powerful and warlike silures in South Wales in spite of the difficulties of the country (Tac. supra). In A.D. 97 he was curator aquarum, and in 98 Consul (according to M.) for the second time; but his name does not appear in the Fasti (Hoffm. Lex. Univ.). He had been Praetor Urbanus in 70 (Tac, Mist. iv. 39), an office he resigned to Domitian, not then Emperor. He wrote a treatise on the art of war called Strategemata, and a work on the Roman aqueducts, both of which are extant. He died in 106, saying in his will impensa monumenti superracua est; memoria nostri durabit si vita тегиiтия Fronto, described by M. (I. Iv.) as a distinguished lawyer and soldier. Perhaps the same as T. Catins Fronto, consul in 96, and alluled to by Pliny (Epp. iv. 9 and vi. 13) as an orator
F'uscus, apparently a lawser of some eminence and wealth whom Martial (vil. xxviii) begs to read and criticise his seventh book. Ho is not the Cornelius Fuscus. who fell in the Dacian war, ri, lxxvi; and perhaps not the Fuscus whom M. courts in I. liv.
Ienthis, or Violentilla, the wife of Stella the port. Martial (vi. xxi.) as well as statlus (Sile. 1. il.) celebrates her marriage. The name is takell from cov, the Greek form of viola. Statius calls her Asterí;
Latinus, a celebrated mime, or comic actor. He was a favourite of Domitian, and is delator, Schol on Juv. iv. 53. Martial writes an epigratn (ix. xxvili). on his portrait. Suetonius (Dom. 15) tells a story how Latinus, when dining with Domitian before the murder of the latter, had disturbed the Emperor, who had been alarmed by various ominous occurrences, by reporting the fulfilment of a prophecy by Ascletarion, the astrologer, of the manner of his own death, i.e., being torn by dogs, whereas Domitian to prevent this had commanded him to be buried.

Licinianus was born like Martial at Bilbilis. He is spoken of highly by the poet as bringing glory to Spain, I. xlix and I. lxi. He is perhaps the Lucius mentloned in xv . Iv. The epigram 1. xlix seems to show he was a lawyer.
Licinus, was originally a Gaulish prisoner taken by Julius Caesar, who gave him his freedom, and made him his steward. Augustus appointed him, in B.c. 15, Governor of Gaul. By extortion during his government he acquired enormous wealth; and Juvenal (i. 109) couples him with Claudius' freedman Pallas as the typical rich man. The magnificence of his toinb on the Via Salaria (as of that of Messalla) was proverbial, VIII. iii. 5,6

Lucanus, Cn. Domitius Curvius, the brother of Cn. Domitius Tullus. The two brothers were types of fraternal affection, I. xxxvi., and $\mathbf{v}$. xxviii. 3, and Martial (IX. li.) compares them to Castor and Pollux. He died before his brother, after having held high office under Nero and Domitian. Both are alluded to by Pliny, Ep. viii. 18
Lucanus, M. Annaeus, the poet of the Pharsalia, was the son of Lucius Annaeus Mela, the geographer, and the nephew of Seneca, the philosopher, and was born at Corduba in Spain. At first he was in favour with Nero, but afterwards, from the Emperor's jealousy of his literary ability, fell into disfavour, and was forbidden to recite in public. From pique he joined the Pisonian conspiracy of A.D. 65, and was offered a pardon if he would betray his fellow-conspirators. He denounced his own mother Atilla. But this did not save him, for he was forced by Nero to commit suicide by opening his veins in a bath : Tac. An. xv. 70. Martial, who regarded him as next to Virgil, laments his death in three epigrams, viI. xxi-xxiii. ; as also does Statius, Silv. II. vii. His first work was on the death of Hector and Priam's recovery of the body, Stat. Silv. u. vii. 54 ; and his last the Pharsalia; but, according to Martial (x. lxiv.) he did not confine himself to grave subjects. Juvenal (vii. 79) says he was a rich man; and Tacitus (Ann. xvi. 17) that Nero was greedy for his wealth
Macer, a friend of Martial, and ${ }^{2 t}$ one time curator of the Appian Way ( $x$. xvii.), and afterwards propraetor of Dalmatia ( x . Ixxviii.). Martial in two epigrams (v. xxviii. 5 , and x . lxxviii. 2) speaks of his honesty and uprightness. He is probably not the Macer who was Governor of Baetica (XII. xcviii.)
Marcella, a Spanish lady from Bilbilis, to whom M. addresses two epigrams, in one (xII. xxl.) praising her mind as truly Roman, and in the other (xil. xxxi.) acknowledging the gift of the country house she gave him when he returned to Spain. Some have supposed she was his wife
Marcellinus served in the Sarmatian campaign,. vi. xxv., vir. !xxx; and in the Caucasus, IX. xlv. Martial sends him his seventh book, VII. lxxx. ; and writes on his father's birthday, III. vi. He also warns him against overrash valour: he should consider his father, as well as his Emperor, VI. xxv. That father is supposed to have been Faustinus. Marcellinus himself is called boni suboles sincera parentis, vI, xxy .

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES

Marsus, Domitius, a poet of the Augustan age, frequently mentioned by Martial, together with Pedo and Catullus, with whom he compares himself, v. v. 6 ; vii. xcix. 7. IIe wrote epics. Ov. Lix. P. IV. xvi. 5; and Martial alludes to an Amazonis (iv. xxix. 8) which, however, he regards as inferior to the satires of Persius. Marsus is chiefly distinguished for his epigrams, which were licentious and biting, one of his books being called cicuta (hemlock). An epitaph of his on Tibullus is extant Martialis, Julius, a friend for 33 years of the poet, by whom he is addressed in some of the finest epigrams, I . xv.; v. xx., x . xlvii, and xil. xxxiv. Martial also describes his villa on the Janiculum, iv. lxiv; and his library, viI. xvii. Paley identifies him with the Julius Martialis mentloned by Tacitus (Hist. i. 28 and 82) as tribunus legionis, when Otho was aspiring to the purple, and as being suspected of complicity with the plot. He appears to have been a good critic, vi. i; and Martial sends him his sixth book, ibid.; and he is probably also the Martlatis to whom is sent the third book from Forum Cornelii, III. v.
Maternus, a jurisconsult, whom Martial describes as a fellowtownsman of Bilbilis, and an old friend, x. xxxvii. 1, 3. In the same epigram M. compares the charm of life in Spain with life in a Roman villa
Melior, Atedius, a bon vieant of the time, called nitidus, iv. liv. 8 . Martial praises him (vili. xxxviii) for his liberality to the Guild of Scribes in memory of his friend Blaesus; and both Martial (vi. xxviii and xxix), and Statius (Sile. II. i.) have written on the death of his freedman Glaucias Messalla Corvinus, M. Vaterius, the friend of Horace and patron of Tibullus. Was Consu 1s.c. 31 and Pracfectus Urbi in 27. Ife was a patron of learning and the arts, and was himseli a poet, a grammarian, historian, and orator. He took the side of Brutus and Cassins in the civil war, but was afterwards reconciled to Augustus. His tomb (alluded to by Martial, viil. iii. 5 and x . ii. 9) was, like that of Licinus, celebrated for its splendour

Nomentum, now La Mentana, a town in the Sabine Country, $14 \frac{1}{2}$ Roman miles N.E. of Rome. Originally a Latin town, a colony from Alba, it was taken by Tarquinius Priscus, the firth king of Rome. Martial, and also Seneca, had a house here, vi. xliii. 4, 1 x . xviii. 2 ; and here M. retired when he wanted quiet, xis. lvii. 27. Nomentum was celebrated for its wine, which, when it was old, M. praises, I. cv., and offers to his guests in X. xlviii. 19 : but the poet in other respects depreciates his property, x. xciv. His flelds, he says (vir. axxi. 8) " produced nothing but himself"

Ovidits, Q., Martial's friend and neighbour at Nomentum. He had accompanied Caesonius Maximus into exile when the former was banished by Nero, for which Martial (vit. xliv. and xlv.) praises him. In his old age he accompanied a friend to Britain, apparently in fulliment of a promise, or from affection, $x$. xliv. Martiai writes two eplgrams (Ix. lii. and liii) on hls birthday

Paris, a mime or comle actor, for whom Martial writes an epitaph (x1. xiii). He had great hntuence at Court, and was the darling of the Roman people. Domittan, on suspiclon of his intrigue with the Empress Domitia, caused him to be murdered on the Flaminian Way

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES

Parthenius, a freedman, and Secretary or chamberlain to Domitian. Though he had been privy to the murder of that Emperor, the mildness of Nerva retained him for a time in his place, but was unable to protect him against the infuriated praetorians who put him to death with nameless indignities in A.D. 97. He seems to have been something of a poet, xi. i. 6 ; xII. xi. 2, and is constantly Hattered by Martial, to whom he gave the celebrated toga described in viII. xxriii.
Paulus, some rich acquaintance of Martial, apparently a lawyer, vir. Ixxii. Martial quizzes him on the tenuity of the bowl Paulus had sent him, vili. xxxiii.; and on his greed, Ix. Ixxxv.; and satirises his adulation of great men, although he is himself consul, $x . x . ;$ and his false antiques and equally false friends, xII. lxix.; and complains of the trouble of calling upon him at a distance only to find him " not at home," v. xxii. He seems to have been a man of wit, v. xxviii. 6.
Pedo, Albinovanurs, a poet and epigrammatist of the Augustan age, and a friend of Ovid, who addresses him in one of the Fipistles from the Pontus: Ep. ex P. IV. X.; and alludes to his poem on the exploits of Theseus. Martial compares himself with him and with Marsus and Catullus, v. v. 6
Plinius, Caius Caecilius, Secundus, the nephew and adopted son of the historian, born A.D. 61 or 62, probably at Comum. An orator, advocate and man of letters. He studied under Quintilian, and practised before the Centumviral Court, and filled several offices, being Consul in 100 (in which year lie delivered his Panegyric on Trajan), and Propractor of Pontica in 103. His works consist of the Panegyric on Trajan above mentioned, and ten books of Epistles, of which the tenth consists of letters to Trajan and the Emperor's replies, two of which ( 97 and 98 ) are especially interesting by their allusion to the Christians. He was one of the most learned men of the age. Martial addressed an epigram ( x . xix.) to him ; but the Secundus alluded to in vil. lxxxiv. (where the note should be corrected) chronology shows not to be the same Primus, Marcus Antonius, was born at Tolosa in Gaul (IX. xcix. 3), took a leading part in the Civil war that made Vespasian Emperor, and was the first to enter Rome after the second battle of Bedriacum against the Vitellians. He bore the nickname in his youth of Beccus (beak of a cock, gallus); and Suetonius (Vit. 28) mentions the prophecy that Vitellius would fall into the hands Gallicani hominis. He perhaps gave Martial a toga (x. Ixxiii. 2), and he admired his poetry, IN. xcix. 1. M. calls him Tolosae gloria, IX. xcix. 3 ; and in a fine epigram congratulates him on his wellspent life, $x$. xxiii.; and ${ }^{\text {in }}$ another praises his portrait as a youth, X. xxxii. But Tacitus gives a different account of his character. "Though an offender against the laws, and condemned for forgery in the time of Nero, amongst the other evils of war, he had recovered his place in the order of senators. Though he had been appointed by Galba to the command of the seventh legion, he was believed to have written to Otho, offering himself as an adherent to his party. When the fortunes of Vitellius were tottering he attached himself to the party of Vespasian, and brought to it a great accession of strength. He was energetic in action, ready of tongue, a master of the art of sowing the seeds of suspicion against other men, influential in discords and seditlons, a phunderer, a briber, in peace most vile, in war not to be despised," Hist. ii. 86. "Me had a ready andaeity," Ann. xiv. 40 ; anil "glibness of speech, and skill and inlluence, in soothing the common herd," Hist. iii. 10. " He was of an arroganee impatient of an equal, much more of a superior," Hist. iv. 80; "success in the ease of such a character laid bare his avarice, his insolence,, and his other hidden vices,", IList. iii. 49

Priseus, Terentius, a fellow-countryman of Martial, to whom he dedicates, on Priscus' retirn to Spain, the twelfth book. In XII. lxii. he addresses saturn on the same subject. Martial calls him (XII. iv.) his Maecenas. In ViII. xlv. he celebrates Priscus's return from Sicily; and in another epigram (xil xiv.) warns him against the darger of too reekless hunting Proculus, G. Julius, a friend of Martial, to whom he sends ( I . lxx.) his first book, and whose recovery from illness he commemorates, Xi. xxxvi.
T'udens, Aulus, of Sassina in Umbria, a friend of Marlial, and a centurion. He served in Pamnonia. Martial celebrates his marriage with Claudia, iv. xiii.; and prays (vi. Iviii. 10) that he may return from his campaigns with primipilar rank and the rank of a knight. It may be inferred from 1. xxxi. 3, as compared with v. xlviii. 1, that he attained the former honour at least Quintianys, some rich friend of M. (v. xviii. 9) to whom M, says that, being poor, he will only send his books. In I. lii. M.

appeals to him against a plagiarist
Quintilianus, M. Fubius, was born at Calagurris (Calahorra) in Spain. He was the noost celebrated of Roman rhetoricians. Educated at Rome, he returned to Spain, and cane back with Galba in 68. He practised at the Bar, but is chielly hnown as a teacher of eloguence, the younger Pliny (Ep, ii. 14; vi. 6) being one of his pupils. He held the chair of rhetoric fomded by Vespasian; and was eranted by Domitian the insignia of a consul, to which Juvenal (vii. 197) may perhaps sarcastically allude. Aiter twenty years' tenure of the chair he retired about 89 A.D., and in two years had completed the work for which he is principally known, the Institutiones Oratorice in twelve books. He adrised Martial to take up a profession, II. xe.

Rabirius, the architect of Domitian's palace, vir. Ivi. Mantial has an epigran on the death of R.'s parents, and praises his illial piety, x. xxi.
Regulus, M. Aqzillizs, a celebrated advocate. He was a delator under Nero and Domitian, and attained great wealth. He is disliked by Pliny, but is flattered by Martial, who praises his character(l.cxi.). Pliny ridicules even his oratorical power (EP . iv. 7), and his extravagant grief for the death of hls son, $\because$ a boy of a quick but inscrutable disposition, who yet might have tollowed the right, had he not been like hls fallier," Ep.iv. 2. M. congratulates him in two epigrams (I, xii. and lxxxli.) on his escape from death. Pllny descrlbes him as "rlch, factious, courted by many, feared by more; and fear is generally stronger than love," Ep. I. 5 :

and remarks his chastened attitude after Domitian's death, " under whom he had committed no smaller infamies than under Nero, but more covert ones," ibid. Pliny also (Ep. ii. 20) tells a story of his legacy-hunting even in the case of his enemy's wife
Rufus, Camonius, of Bononia, a iriend of M . He died at the age of 20 in Cappadocia, vi. lexxy. M. alludes in two epigrams (Ix. Ixxiv. and lxxvi.) to his portrait as a child, and writes an epigram (vi. lxxxv.) on his death
Rufus, Canius, of Gades, a poet (I. Ixi. 9) and iriend of Martial, who alludes (I. 1xix.; III. xx.) to his geniality, and to his versatility as an author. He married the accomplished Theophila, on whom M. (VII. lxix.) writes an epigram
Rufus, Instantius, a friend of M., to whom he presented the famous cup elaborately described in vili. di. M. speaks of his sincerity, vili. lxxiii. 1. Perhaps he may be identified with the proconsul of Baetica mentioned in XII. xeviii. $\overline{5}$

Sabinus, Caesius, of Sassina in Umbria, where he built a temple to the Nymph of the Lake, Ix. Iviii. M. sends him (vir. xcvii. 13) his seventh book, and on another occasion a wreath of roses, Ix. 1x.
Scorpus, a famous charioteer on whose death Martial writes two epitaphs, $x$. 1. and liii.; and of whose immense earnings he speaks, IV. Ixvii.; x. Ixxiv.; and gilt statue, v. xxv.
Seneca, L. Annarus, the Stoic philosopher, was born at Corduba in Spain, I. lxi. 7. He was the brother of Annaeus Mela, the geographer, and of Gallio of the New Testament, and uncle of Lucan the poet. He was banished by the Emperor Claudius, but was afterwards tutor to Nero, whose quinquennium, or first five years of good govermment, was attributed to his teaching. He, however, stained his reputation by condoning Nero's murder of his mother Agrippina. He was implicated in the conspiracy of Piso in A.D. 65, and, together with his wife, committed suicide, Tac. Ann. xv. 63. He was a man oi great wealth
Severus, a critic to whom Martial submits his poems, v. lxxx.; xi. Ivii. As in the last epigram he is called doctus, he may have been himself a poet. In II. vi. M. chaffs him for his hurried reading of Martial's slender volume, although he professed to be a great admirer of his poems. There is also an epigram (vii. xxxviii.) on two hideous slaves of his; and Martial frequently addresses him. In vir. xlix. he sends him a gift of eggs and apples from the country. It is not certain whether this Severus is identical with the younger son of Silius, for whom the poet (viII. 1xvi.) solicits the consulship; and whose death (Ix. lxxxyi.) he laments

Silius, C., surnamed Italicus, orator, lawyer, and poet, was born about A.D. 25. Pliny (Ep. iii. 7) gives an account of his life. He was consul in 68, the last of Nero's consuls, and proconsul of Asia, where he served with distinction. He lost his younger son, for whom Martial solicits (viil. lxvi.) the consulship, and whose death he laments, ix. lxxxvi.; but leit the elder a consular. In later life he retired to Campania, where he possessed many villas, including Ciccro's house at Puteoli and Virgil's house at Naples, xi. xlviii. and xhix. These villas were richly furnished with books, statues, and busts, among which he especially venerated that of Virgil, whose birthday he kept more religiously than his own, and whose tomb he regarded as a temple. He committed suicide by voluntary starvation in his seventy-sixth year because of an incurable cancer. As a poet Martial (vir. Jxiii.) calls him immortal, but Pliny says that his works showed more scholarly care than genius. He is known by his Punica, an epic on the second Punic war in seventeen books, of which Prof. Mackail says: " His Punic War may fairly contend for the distinction of being the worst epic ever written . . . its author the most striking instance in Latin literature of the incorrigible amateur . . . withont any inventive or constructive power of his own. Silius copies with tasteless pedantry all the outworn traditions of the heroic epic." He is only once referred to in the fifth century; then he fell into complete oblivion till he was discovered in the fifteenth Stella, L. Arruntitus, of Patavium, a patron and friend of Martial and Statius, who dedicates to him the first book of the Silvae. Both Martial (vi. xxi.) and Statius (Silv. i. 2) write epithatamia on Stella's marriage with Violentilla, whom M. calls Ianthis, and Statius Asteris. Stella gave games to celebrate the conclusion of the Sarmatian war, vill. lxxviii.; and was consul A.D. 101 ; an honour for which M. (IX. xlii.) had solicited Apollo. Statius (Silv. 1, ii. 177) also says that he was a quindecimvir librorum sibyllinorum. He was also a poet. M. alludes to his Columba, a poem on the death of lanthis' pet dove, I. vii. 1 ; vil. xiv. 5 ; and writes several epigrams (e.g. vi. xlvii.) on a spring in Stella's house Sulpicia, a poetess of the time, of whom nothing is known, X. xxxy. She was the wife of Calenus, x . sxxyiii. She is mentioned by Ausonius and by Sidonius A pollinaris; and a satirical poem on the expulsion by Domitian of the philosophers from Rome is commonly attributed to her. Paley ascribes to her the poems often contained in the editions of Tibullus Sura, Licinius, of Mispania Tarraconensis, held othices under Nerva and Trajan, being under the latter three times consul. Martial speaks (ril. xlvii. 1) of his learning, and (vi. lxiv. 13) appreeiation of M.'s poems, and in the first epigram, one of the best, of his unexpected recovery from severe. Illness. He would seem to have been it natural philosopher, for Pliny (Ep. Iv. xxs.) consultshimas to the mexplained ebb and tlow of a spring. On his death Trajan gave him a public funcral, and built baths in his memory. He is perhaps the Sura of I. xhix. 40, but this Sura may be Palfurius Sura, who was removed from the Senate by Vespasian, became a Stoic, was a delator under Domitlan, and was aiter his death condemned by the Senate, Schol. in Juv. iv. 53

INDEX OF PROPER NAMES

Tullus, Cn. Domitius Curvius, the brother of Lucaus (q.v.). He held high office under Vespasian and Domitian. He was arich man like his brother, and lliny (EP viii. 18) speaks of the disappoint ment of the captatores when his will was opened, and says oi the two brothers that it seemed ordained by fate that they should be enriched even against the will of the donors. He had played upon the expectations of legacy-hunters (se captandum pracbuisset) during his life, and by his will left hls property to his relations, thus showing himself longe melior morte quam vita. He was a crlpple, unable even to brush his own teeth, complaining that " he daily licked the fingers of his slaves,' Pliny, l.c. Pliny speaks of the devotion of his wife

Vestinus, perhaps the Lucius $V$. described by Tacitus (Hist. iv. 53) as equestris ordinis virum, sed auctoritate famaque inter proceres, to whom Vespasian gave the duty of restoring the Capitol; and perhaps also the son of the consul Vestinus who, being marked for death by Ncro, committed suicide by opening his veins in a bath (Tac. Ann. xv. 69). Martial praises him (iv. lxxiii.) for dividing his property amongst his frlends when he was on the point of death. Paley suggests that his motive was to avoid making the Emperor his heir, or joint heir; and cites the example of Agricola (Tac. Ag. 43), who had made Domitian joint heir with his own wife and daughter

Zoilus, an anonymous person frequently attacked by M., and to whom is attributed every vice. He had been a slave (III. xxix.) and a runaway one (xi.liv.), and had afterwards become a knight (III. xxix.) It is not improbable that M. borrowed the name from the original Zoilus, a grammarian of Amphipolis who flourished in the time of Philip of Macedon and Alexander the Great, and whose name, because of his attacks on Homer, Plato, and others, became one synonymous with malignant criticism, Ov . Rem. Am. 366. He was called кขш̀у 'рךторько́я, and і̀ $\mu \eta \rho о \mu а ́ \sigma т \iota \xi$, and remains, in the words of Swinburne (Cont. of Shal. II.) "eternally alive (or in Browning's characteristically audacious phrase) 'immortally immerded.'" Aelian (V.H. xi. 10) reports a remark of his that he always spoke evilly of men because he could not do them evil

[^0]:    1 This book appears by internal evidence to have been published towards the end of A.D. 93. The epigrams are not, however, in chronological order.

[^1]:    ${ }^{1}$ Because of the Emperor's recent victories on the Danube.
    2 The god Janus presided over the year and the public records. He was represented with two faces turned in opposite ways, i.e. towards the past and the future; or with four to represent the four seasons.

[^2]:    ${ }^{1}$ Thalia, the Muse of epigram. ${ }^{2}$ Hexameters.
    ${ }^{3}$ For Jan. 3, the day when vows were publicly offered for the Emperor (votorum nuncupatio : cf. Suet. Ner. xlvi.). 6

[^3]:    ${ }^{1}$ In the battle between the Lapithae and the Centaurs.
    = Achilles : cf. Hom. Il. ix. 203.

[^4]:    ${ }^{3}$ Aeneas : $c f$. Verg. Aen. i. 738.
    4 i.e. something very young and immature. Astyanax was the grandson of Priam.
    $c f$. vi. $\mathbf{x x x v} .1$.

[^5]:    ${ }^{1}$ Naturals or cretins were kept as curiosit es : ef. III. lxxxii. 24 ; XII. xciii. 3.

[^6]:    ${ }^{2}$ of. a similar epigram, vin. lxviii.

[^7]:    ${ }^{1}$ Domitian had waived a formal triumph, merely dedicating a lanrel-wreath (istal luurea, 1. 6) to Jupiter Capitolinus: Suet. Dom. vi.; Stat. Sylv. nir. iii. 171.

[^8]:    ${ }^{1}$ Horace.
    2 It is fatal to appear poor : cf. v. lxxxi.
    3 The Constellation of the Lesser Bear.

[^9]:    ${ }^{1}$ Hybrids were supposed to want sense. A hybrid primarily meant the offspring of a sow and of a wild boar : $f f$. Plin. N.H. viii. 79.

[^10]:    ${ }^{1}$ Bacchus, according to myth, made an expedition into the East, where he taught the conquered nations the use of the vine. He was represented as drawn by tigers.

[^11]:    ${ }^{1}$ Phryxus' ram with the golden fleece : $c f$. vi. iii. 6.
    2 A hint for a new cloak.

[^12]:    ${ }^{1}$ Paulus ( $c f$. vil. lxxii.) had sent M. a cup of such thin metal that it could hardly be called a cup. An epigram against paltry gifts.

[^13]:    ${ }^{1}$ A kind of soap giving the hair a light hue : cf. xiv. xxvi. $\quad 2 c f$. II. xxix. 9.
    ${ }^{3}$ An ancient Greek artist, famous for working in silver : cf. xiv. xcr. He was contemporary with Phidias.

[^14]:    ${ }^{4}$ Perhaps addressed to a silversmith who was in the habit of "faking" his antiques. "You may not have faked this," says M., "but that does not prove it genuine."

[^15]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. vil. lvi.

[^16]:    1 A hundred farthings (quadrantes) was the client's usual allowance ( $c f$. III. vii. 1), and a quadrans was the price of a bath.

[^17]:    ${ }^{2}$ Who rejected the solicitation of his stepmother Phaedra.
    ${ }^{3}$ The virgin goddess of chastity.
    4 The emasculated Attis : cf. v. xli. 2.
    ${ }^{5}$ cf. I. vi. 1.

[^18]:    ${ }^{1}$ A well-known fop: cf. Cum verna Canopi $\mid$ Crispinus, Tyrias humero revocante lacernas: Juv. i. 27.

[^19]:    ${ }^{1}$ All Greek artists of past days, renowned for chasing or sculpture.
    ${ }^{2}$ The golden fleece of the ram that bore Phryxus and Helle over the sea : $c f$. viif. xxviii. 20. ${ }^{3} c f$. vir. xev. 13.

[^20]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. 1. cvi.
    ${ }^{2}$ M. intends to drink to the vocative, i.e. Rufe, Istanti, etc.
    ${ }^{3}$ Probably the Emperors Claudius and Nero, who bore this name before they became Emperors.

[^21]:    ${ }^{4}$ cf. Vil. Ixxxiii.
    ${ }^{5}$ An echo of the style of Catullus: $c f . \times x i .2$ and xxiv. 2.
    ${ }^{6}$ i.e. whose virtues (or bounties) increase day by day.

[^22]:    ${ }^{1}$ i.e. in the presence of the emperor.
    ${ }^{2}$ A yoke of lions was the sign of Cybele.

[^23]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. v. xvi. 12.
    ${ }^{2}$ Characters in the Bucolics.

[^24]:    ${ }^{1}$ The son of Mercury, patron of thieves, and himself the typical thief.

[^25]:    2 "To regard a person as not born" was a common phrase to express that the person alluded to was a nobody : $c f . \mathrm{rv}$. Ixxxiii. 4 ; x. xxvii. 4 ; Petr. 58.

[^26]:    ${ }^{1}$ A temple was built to Fortuna Redux in-honour of Domitian's Sarmatian campaign.
    ${ }^{2}$ The temple of Fortuna Redux being the other.
    ${ }^{3}$ The lictor, escorting the consul to his house, struck on the door with his staff: Liv. vi. 34.

[^27]:    ${ }^{3}$ Hares and goats were hunted in the arena at the Ludi Florales.
    ${ }_{5}^{4}$ M. had no water laid on to his house : cf. ix. xix.
    ${ }^{5}$ Alcinous: $c f$. vir. xlii. 6.
    ${ }^{6}$ cf. a similar epigram, vin. xiv.

[^28]:    ${ }^{1}$ Afterwards emperor. His poetical ability is also alluded to in IX. xxyi.

[^29]:    ${ }^{2}$ A fountain (also called Aganippe) sacred to the Muses, and arising in Mt. Helicon.
    ${ }^{3}$ Nero is said to have called Nerva his Tibullus.
    ${ }^{4}$ i.e. inferior: $c f . \mathrm{IV}$. Ixxxviii. 3.

[^30]:    ${ }^{1}$ The full name appears to have been Colonia Julia Paterna Narbo Marcia, now Narbonne. It was the capital of Gallia Narbonensis.

[^31]:    ${ }^{2}$ Istantius Rufus : cf. vili. li. 21.
    ${ }^{3}$ Countrymen of Ovid.
    ${ }^{+}$Birthplace of Virgil.

[^32]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. similar epigrams, I. xxx. and xlvii. ${ }^{2}$ rf. III. v. 5.

[^33]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. a very similar epigram, v . Ixiii.
    ${ }^{2}$ For a similar sentiment, $c f$. x . xxiii. 7,8 .
    ${ }^{3}$ The victory of the gods over the giants in the Phlegraean Plains in Campania : cf. viri. 1. 1.

[^34]:    ${ }^{4} c f$. vili. xxvi. 7.
    5 A cord hung with gifts for the populace.
    ${ }^{6}$ Entitling the holder to receive presents.

[^35]:    ${ }^{1}$ Addressed as Avitus also in I. xvi.
    ${ }^{2}$ i.e. a senator. S. was consul A.d. 92.

[^36]:    ${ }^{3}$ Domitian, copying Augustus, who named August, gave the names Germanicus and Domitianus to September and October respectively, because he was made emperor in the one and was born in the other : Suet. Dom. 13.

[^37]:    ${ }^{1}$ of. vi. iii. 6 ; vi. xiii.
    ${ }^{2}$ The temple built by Domitian in honour of the gens Flavia: cf. Ix. iii. 12.

[^38]:    ${ }^{1}$ An uncia for every $a s$, i.e. a penny in the shilling.
    ${ }^{2} c f$. iv. i. $6:$ iv. liv. 1.
    ${ }^{3}$ Domitian regarded hiinself as being peculiarly under the protection, and in fact the son, of Pallas.

[^39]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. II. lx. 4 ; v. lxxv.
    2 "Vale" was said when the survivors took leave of the [^40]:    1 "You now save the sum you spent on him."

    ${ }^{2}$ The honey of Hybla, in Sicily, and of Hymettus respectively : $c f$. v. xxxix. 3 ; viI. lxxxviii. 8.

[^41]:    1 The Greek adjectives expressing autumn, winter, and
     "Of spring" is similarly 'Eapıvós.
    ${ }^{2}$ Acidalia was a name of Venus from a fountain in Boeotia. She was also called Cytherea from Cythera, an island off the coast of Laconia.

[^42]:    1 The words are ambiguous. "Chloe fecit" was intended to mean "C. built this tomb." M. suggests "wrought the death of her husbands."

[^43]:    ${ }^{1}$ The Aqua Marcia was one of the great aqueducts. According to Strabo (v. 3) almost every house in Rome had water laid on ; see also Hor. Ep. I. x. 20. M.'s was an exception : cf. viII. lxvii. 7 .
    ${ }^{2}$ An epigrain on the building of the Flavian Temple on the site of the house in which Domitian was born : Suet. Dom. i.

[^44]:    ${ }^{1}$ Wine was strained through snow: cf. v. lxiv. 2; xiv. exvii. ${ }^{2}$ cf. xiv. cxxvii. and exxix. ${ }^{3} c f$. x. xiii. 2.

    4 Possibly Pastor (like Gellius in rx. xlvi.) made "building" an excuse for never " giving." Friedländer explains "carry out public works for the general good "; but this is not in the Latin.

[^45]:    ${ }^{5}$ C. had won the golden olive-wreath, the prize for poetry, at the annual contest in honour of Minerva at Domitian's Alban villa: cf. IV. i. 5. This he had transferred to the Emperor's bust.

[^46]:    ${ }^{1}$ tegam $\beta$, petat.

[^47]:    1 The future emperor : $c f$. vill. lxx.
    ${ }^{2}$ The eelebrated perfumer : cf. nir. lv. 1. Glaucina seems to have been an unguent made from the plant glaucium (? celandine).
    ${ }^{3}$ i.e. will send things-and inferior things-where they are not wanted. Corsican honey was bitter from the abundance of yews in the island : cf. Verg. Ecl. ix. 30.

[^48]:    ${ }^{4}$ Who made verses easily : Suet. Ner. lii.
    ${ }^{5} \mathrm{M}$. constantly reviles the hypocrisy of dissolute scoundrels assuming the guise of philosophers: $c f$. I. xxiv.; $1 x$. xlviii.; and Juv. ii. 3 seqq.

[^49]:    ${ }^{1}$ Such women were called diobolares (worth two obols): Plaut. Poen. I. ii. 58 ; and associated with slaves. Plaut. (ibid. 53) thus calls them servilicolas sordidas.

[^50]:    1 i.e. you know whether corn, which comes from Egypt and Libya, is likely to be plentiful. ${ }^{2} c f$. Ix. xxiii. $1 . \quad{ }^{3}$ cf. $\mathrm{Ix} . \mathrm{xxiii} .5$.

[^51]:    ${ }^{1}$ An epigram on a juggler tossing a shield. A mistake, says M., is impossible, unless intended.

[^52]:    2 Domitian, born Oct. 24.
    ${ }^{3}$ Canius Rufus, the poet of Gades : ff. 1. lxi, 9 ; 111. xx.

[^53]:    ${ }^{1} c f .1 \mathrm{x} . \mathrm{xxiii} 5 . \quad 2$ i.c. mentulam.
    ${ }^{3}$ Without embarking from Egypt at all.

[^54]:    ${ }^{1}$ A towr. in Mysia, in Asia Minor. In the neighbourhood was Grynium with a temple of Apollo.
    ${ }^{2}$ i.e. in vocal swans. Swans were supposed to sing just before death : cf. xiII. lxxvii. ${ }^{3}$ The Muses.

    4 The insignia of the consul : $c f$. viri. lxvi. 3.
    ${ }^{5}$ Hercules for a time took the place of Atlas in upholding the sky : cf. vii. lixiv. 6.

[^55]:    ${ }^{6}$ He has a club in one hand, a wine-cup in the other.
    7 This and the following epigram are on a statue by Lysippus, a contemporary of Alexander the Great, of Hereules reclining at the banquet of the gods (epitrapezius). Statius (Sylv. Iv. vi.) has a poem on the same subjeet.

    8 Alexander the Great.
    ${ }^{9} \mathrm{H}$. when a boy swore undying hatred to Rome.

[^56]:    ${ }^{1}$ The shepherd who entertained him unawares: cf. iv. Ixiv. 30.
    ${ }^{2}$ Prometheus, according to myth, moulded man out of elay ( $f f$. $x$. xxxix. 4), giving them the qualities of various 104

[^57]:    ${ }^{1}$ Parthenius (himself a poet: cf. xi. i.) was Domitian's secretary, his name being derived from a apó̀vos (virgin), on which M. plays. The cloak was once young and unspotted : now it is old.
    ${ }^{2}$ i.e. threadbare, and therefore chill : cf. iv. xxxiv. 2.
    ${ }^{3}$ It befits my poverty.

[^58]:    ${ }^{1}$ M.'s friend and neighbour at Nomentum : $c f$. vil. xciii. He addresses to him vir. xliv. and xlv., and the following epigram.
    ${ }^{2}$ A cane smeared with bircllime, which could be elongated like a fishing-rod: $c f$. xiv. cexviii.

[^59]:    ${ }^{1}$ See note to preceding epigram.
    ${ }^{2}$ Stella, the poet mentioned in i. vii. and other epigrams, and (perhaps) Valerius Flaccus, the author of the epic poem, the Argonautict.

[^60]:    * Perhaps porcelain : cf. xıv. cxiii.

    5 A celebrated worker in embossed metal of the fourth century b.c.: $\subset f$. III. xli. I ; iv. xxxix. 5.
    ${ }^{6}$ He had not even a slave of his own,

[^61]:    ${ }^{1}$ Which produced nothing: $c f$. vil. xxxi. 8. ${ }^{2}$ The Guadalquiver. ${ }^{3} c f$. v. xxxvii. 7 ; vill. xxviii. 6.

[^62]:    ${ }^{4}$ Julius Caesar.
    ${ }^{5}$ Rustic deities, half goat, half in human shape.
    ${ }^{6}$ The Dryads were nymphs of the woods.
    ${ }^{7}$ But those of his conqueror.

[^63]:    ${ }^{1}$ She wishes to drown her own peculiar odour. Tyriandyed garments had a rank smell : $c f .1 \mathrm{iv}$. iv. 6.
    ${ }^{2}$ Domitian dedicated a temple to Hercules with a statue hearing the features of the emperor.

[^64]:    ${ }^{3}$ To the temple and grove of Diana of the Crossways (Tricia) at Aricia.

    * The emperor.
    ${ }^{5}$ Jupiter of the Capitol.

[^65]:    ${ }^{1}$ Hercules was the serf of Eurystheus until he had accomplished his twelve labours.
    ${ }^{2}$ Lichas, the servant of Hercules, at the bidding of Deianeira, his wife, gave him the shirt of Nessus steeped in the poison of the hydra slain by H. It clung to him, and he burnt himself on a pyre on Mt. Oeta.

[^66]:    ${ }^{1}$ Some disgraceful complaisance was required in return, which M. says he refused, but which Aeschylus would not.
    ${ }^{2}$ Successful lawyers were in the habit of erecting equestrian statues of themselves in their vestibules: cf. Juv. vii. 124.

[^67]:    ${ }^{3}$ To whom also viri. lxxvii. is adłressed.
    ${ }^{4}$ i.e. Spartan. Pollux, the son of Spartan Leda, invented boxing. $\quad{ }^{5}$ Liber was also a synonym of Bacchus.

[^68]:    ${ }^{1}$ decepti regra $\beta$.

[^69]:    ${ }^{1}$ cf. Ix. lxxvi. 3-5.
    ${ }^{2}$ cf. vi. xlii. 11. Laconian marble was green.
    3 The wooden bath might have made a boat (1.5), but is now to make a fire.

[^70]:    1 The Fates.
    ${ }^{2}$ C. died in Cappadocia: cf. Vi. lxxyv. 3.

[^71]:    ${ }^{1}$ Appius Norbanus had been sent in A.D. 88 to crush the revolt of Saturninus against Domitian : cf. rv. xi. He was absent six years, and M.'s works would be Books IV.-VIII.
    ${ }^{2}$ i.e. is lost to me. Porrigere pedes was said of a corpse when laid out with the feet pointing to the outer door: Pers. iii. 105 ; Hom. Il. xix. 212.

[^72]:    ${ }^{1} i$ e. as a witness. But M. hints that Lupercus wishes

[^73]:    ${ }^{1}$ Wine was strained through ice or snow : cf. v. lxiv. 2; xiv. exvii.

[^74]:    2 The constellation Leo.
    3 At the festival of the Matronalia men sent presents to their mistresses : $c f . \mathrm{v}$, lxxxiv. 11 .

[^75]:    ${ }^{1}$ i.e. to extort confession of some offence: Juv. xiv. 21.
    ${ }^{2}$ Domitian, who founded the temple of the Gens Flavia: cf. Ix. i. 8 ; Ix. iii. 12.
    ${ }^{3}$ The six and the two tens represent respectively the names Caesar, Domitianus, and Germanicus. For this practice, ef. І. lxxi.; xı. xxxvi. 7.

[^76]:    ${ }^{1}$ About two shillings, or double the usual dole ( $c f$. in. vii. l) of centum quadrantes. Large doles were sometimes given : $c f$. IV. xxvi. 3; x. xxvii. 3.

[^77]:    ${ }^{1}$ Though he had been proclaimed Caesar, and was in possession of Rome, he resigned the empire to his father Vespasian and his brother Titus in precedence to himself, boasting, however, putri se et fratri imperium dedisse, illos sibi reddidisse : Suet. Dom. xiii.
    ${ }^{2}$ In his three campaigns against the tribes on the Danube. As to the shattering of the horn, $c f . \mathrm{x}$. vii. 6.
    148

[^78]:    ${ }^{1}$ i.e. by reading only the short epigrams.
    2 This book is not the first edition, which may have been published in 95, but an enlarged edition published in 98 after Book XI. M. afterwards issued a selection from Books X. and XI.: cf. xı. v. 1-2.

[^79]:    1 i.e. of noble ladies, or of magistrates and senators.
    ${ }^{2}$ Resorts of beggars : cf. in. xix. 3 ; xif. xxxii. 10, 25.
    ${ }^{3}$ Where he took refuge.
     lxxv. ${ }^{5}$ Ready to eat him.

[^80]:    6 One of the three Judges of the Shades.
    7 Tantalus, who was doomed to thirst in Tartarus for revealing the secrets of the gods.
    ${ }^{8} \mathrm{M}$. follows in this ep., often elosely, the Ibis of Ovid.
    ${ }^{9}$ This ep. was written when the new emperor, Trajan, was expected from the Rhine in A.D. 98.

[^81]:    ${ }^{1}$ Previously shattered by defeat: cf. vir. vii. 3 ; ix. ci. 17.
    ${ }^{2}$ Elegiacs and hendecasyllables.

[^82]:    ${ }^{8}$ Friedländer, however, explains theatrum "semicircular pool with steps." For theatrum=audience, of (as Housman does)-Ov. Met. xi. 25.
    ${ }^{4}$ Jupiter's eagle that carried off Ganymede : $c f$. r. vi.
    ${ }^{5}$ P. Albinovanus, an epic poet and epigrammatist of the Augustan age.
    ${ }^{6} c f$. vi. xxxviii. 5. $\quad{ }^{7}$ Cicero's.

[^83]:    ${ }^{1}$ Learned commentators.
    2 i.e. an interpreter.

[^84]:    ${ }^{1}$ i.e. seventy-five years : cf. vir.' xl. 6.
    ${ }_{2}$ Tacitus draws a very different picture : $c f$. the Index under "Primus."
    ${ }^{3}$ Who ordinarily received gifts on that day: cf. $v$. lxxxiv. 11.

[^85]:    ${ }^{1}$ The people of Abdera in Thrace were, like the Boeotians, notorious for their stupidity : $c f$. Juv. x. 50.

    2 The tunica molesta: cf. Iv. lxxxvi. 8.
    ${ }^{3}$ With which a centurion kept discipline among his soldiers.
    4.e. whose return to Rome we were expecting.

[^86]:    ${ }^{1}$ The old temple of Janus was near the Roman Forum, and represented Janus with two faces (Janus Geminus).
